Official, 3 others to run Bicentennial

Charles McCoy, Buffalo Grove public works director and three other village residents have been named to the executive committee of the Bufffalo Grove Bicentennial Commission.

McCoy was appointed chairman of the group Monday at a village board meeting by Village Pres. Gary Armstrong.

Among the other member named were: Thomas Fitzgerald, 646 Sycamore, cochairman; Carol Polkou, 950 Dunham Ln., secretary; and Nicholas Rubino, 489 Trinity, treasurer.

Trustee Clarice Rech, who helped engineer formation of the group said 25 other residents also have volunteered their services for the various committees.

Bicentennial groups are being formed in cities and villages throughout the nation to help celebrate the country's 200th birthday in 1976.

SEVERAL SUCH groups are already active in other Northwest suburban communities.

Mrs. Rech said the group is slated to hold its first meeting Dec. 19 in the village hall, 50 Raupp Blvd., to organize committees, discuss fund-raising methods and talk about possibilities for commemorative projects.

Three committees are being organized to design projects while two others will concern themselves with fund-raising and publicity.

Mrs. Rech said appointments will be made to chair those committees at a future village board meeting.

SHE SAID ANYONE interested in participating in the Bicentennial effort should attend the Dec. 19 session at 8 p.m.

A of activities are under consideration to raise funds but Mrs. Rech said no definite plans will be formed until all the panel members are named.

She said the group will receive no funds from the village but will rely on projects and activities to make money and "funnel" the profits toward other activities observing the Bicentennial.

Rubino, newly-appointed treasurer, said one possible fund-raising event might be a carnival in connection with next year's Buffalo Grove Days celebration.

"Hopefully this will be something that every man, woman and child in the village will either participate in or enjoy," said Mrs. Rech.

Miller Builders hurting? 'It's only a rumor...'

An official of Miller Biilders Inc., Skokie, a major Northwest suburban developer, said Tuesday the company is in fine financial health and is not connected with a nationwide firm that is reported to have financial difficulties.

"All it is is a rumor," said Jerry DeGrazia, a Miller official, who said some people in the construction industry have wrongly assumed there is a connection between Miller Builders and the other firm, which has a similar name.

"We've had some tight times, but we're finding our way out of them," said DeGrazia. "We're not going under and are still expanding and trying to develop." The firm has developments in Schaumburg, Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights and Hanover Park.

Other Miller officials confirmed DeGrazia's statement.

"There have been a lot of rumors," said Herman Soifer of Miller's Florida division. "It was to a point that we were panicking ourselves. It was getting hysterical.

"We are solvent and have made arrangements with the trades (unions). They are most happy with us. We're a little tight, but there is no question. We're solvent."

DUNDEE ROAD is on its way to being beautified. The state has planted 45 honey locust trees on the landscaped sections of the median. Next spring the state also will pick up the tab for sodding dividers.

Emergency spending law review asked

Buffalo Grove Trustee Randall Rathjen has asked the village board to review an ordinance that allows Village Mgr. Daniel Larson unlimited spending of municipal funds in emergency situations.

Rathjen said Tuesday he is not "witch-hunting" or looking for specific changes but said the ordinance should be reviewed.

"I simply want to learn more about it myself — not with the foregone conclusion that we should revise it."

THE CODE allows Larson to spend village money to meet emergencies and to award contracts without bids. The expenditures must be itemized and reported to the board as early as possible.

Larson is empowered to make such decisions by the 1967 ordinance that created the position of village manager.

All other expenditures exceeding $1,500 must be approved by the village board in advance and must be contracted by competitive bid.

Larson said he would exercise his authority to act without board approval when there is a possible danger or if delays in action might compound expenses.

He said he has had to meet only one such emergency since becoming manager in 1971 — a $45,000 repair bill when a village well in the central area of Buffalo Grove broke down in 1972.

THE BREAKDOWN, caused by a break in a pumping mechanism, drastically cut water pressure and Larson said would have caused "severe" problems with domestic and fire protection water usage had it not been immediately repaired. Larson said he authorized the payment "to get the job done as quickly as possible."

"You have to take a very realistic and very professional approach," he said. "The decision is almost made for you by the conditions."

In calling for a review of the ordinance, Rathjen said it should be discussed at board level to "see if there is a consensus it should be left alone."

The board is expected to take up the matter again at a meeting Monday.

Parking lot for Wheeling court branch almost ready

A parking lot that will enable the opening of a branch of Circuit Court in the Wheeling municipal building is almost complete, Village Mgr. George Passolt said Tuesday.

He said the gravel base has been installed and all that remains are "a few finishing touches" before the lot is usable. Court officials have delayed the opening of the court until a parking lot is installed that can accommodate the additional traffic.

Plans call for paving of the lot, but Passolt said that will not be done until next spring when weather permits. In the meantime, the gravel lot will be adequate, he said.

The decision to establish a branch of the 2nd Municipal District to serve Wheeling and Buffalo Grove was made last April, but the opening has been delayed because of the parking lot. Passolt said he will notify court officials this week that the lot is almost ready.

CIRCUIT COURT Judge Harold Sullivan said once the lot is finished, court officials will need 45 days to transfer from Arlington Heights to Wheeling. Now that the parking is nearing completion it appears likely the court may open in January.

The transfer to Wheeling is to be made because court dockets in Arlington Heights are overcrowded.

Village officials originally predicted the lot would be finished by Aug. 1. Construction, however, was delayed first by a strike by cement and material truck drivers and then because bids on the project came in higher than expected.

The village board recently rejected the bids and directed village employes to do most of the work, saying it would save the village a substantial amount of money. The parking lot is east of the municipal building and will accommodate about 100 cars.

Pikarsky rejected again as RTA head

Suburban members of the Regional Transportation Authority board Tuesday rejected CTA Chairman Milton Pikarsky for the second time as full-time chairman of the RTA. Pikarsky's name was introduced and supported by the four Chicago members of the RTA board, but the 4-4 vote was a replay of an Oct. 17 meeting. The vote followed board approval of a $16 million emergency grant to the CTA to pay wages, pension funds and employe group insurance. The CTA will get the money by the end of the week if the contract is approved by the board. At an unannounced meeting with a subcommittee of the RTA board Monday, representatives of the CTA said an estimated $35 million will be needed to pay deficits for the last half of 1974 — about the same period the RTA board has existed. The CTA grant will drain nearly 40 per cent of the RTA's reported $41 million bank account. The board already approved aoout $746,000 to two suburban bus companies threatened with failure.

Julie the turkey is back home

Julie the turkey is back from her Thanksgiving hiatus, captured early Tuesday morning after she was spotted in an Arlington Heights neighborhood by Herald carrier boy John Schumacher. The turkey had escaped for the second year in a row from the nature center at Thomas Junior High School. She was welcomed back by Frank, her "husband," said Principal Robert Spinks. "Frank was overjoyed. He strutted around for half an hour," Spinks said. "He kept chasing her around so much she couldn't even eat."

3 cops protest judge's policy

Three Rolling Meadows policemen walked out of Associate Judge John M. Breen Jr.'s Arlington Heights courtroom Monday to protest what they consider the judge's excessively low fines and frequent case dismissals. The officers were back in Breen's courtroom Tuesday with instructions from Police Chief Lewis R. Case to "present their cases like gentlemen." The judge, who met with the three Monday, declined comment except to say, "I could have held them in contempt of court. But I chose not to."

Hospital hit with 3 legal bills

Three separate bills, each totaling about $40,000 have been submitted to Northwest Community Hospital for legal work associated with the hospital's $20.5 million bond sale. The hospital apparently is obligated to pay its own attorney, the village attorney and an independent bond counsel for legal fees run up when the Village of Arlington Heights agreed to issue tax-free revenue bonds for the hospital. The village board voted to reconsider Village Atty. Jack Siegel's $42,375 fee after it learned that the two other law firms are making similar charges.

Police seek ID on injured youth

State police are calling on the public to identify a boy struck by a car at 5:30 p.m. Tuesday at Ill. Rte. 59 and Schaumburg Road. Police said the boy is about 9 years old, wieghs 90 pounds and is about 4 feet 10 inches tall. He has shoulder-length reddish hair and was wearing a blue jacket, a blue sweatshirt and blue-and-white checked pants. Police have asked anyone with information to call AV3-2400. The insured youngster was taken to Sherman Hospital in Elgin with undiscosed injuries.

Boy dies in traffic accident

A 10-year-old traffic accident victim was identified as Robert Adler, Streamwood, by his mother late Tuesday. The boy, whom police were unable to identify for several hours, died at Sherman Hospital, Elgin, of injuries sustained when he was struck by a car at 5:30 p.m. at Ill. Rte. 59 and Schaumburg Rd. His mother learned of the accident when she called police to report him missing.

GOP faces minority leader deadlock

by BOB LAHEY

Anticipating a deadlock among a gaggle of candidates for minority leader of the Illinois House of Representatives, two Northwest suburban legislators have committed themselves to a fellow suburbanite as a compromise candidate.

Whether their efforts will have any effect when Republicans caucus in Springfield tonight appeared to depend, however, on whether a downstater, Rep. James R. Washburn, R-Morris, already has corraled enough votes for a first-ballot victory.

Rep. Eugene Schlickman and Rep. Virginia Macdonald of Arlington Heights were among signers of a letter circulated among House Republicans last week asking support of Rep. Gene L. Hoffman, R-Elmhurst, who was believed to rank third among the four top contenders for the job of minority leader.

Since that time, however, another contender, Rep. Brian B. Duff, R-Wilmette, has withdrawn his name from the race. Should Duff and others who had contended for the post each ask their handful of supporters to support Washburn, he could emerge a first-ballot winner.

Eugene Schlickman

Virginia Macdonald

THE ALLIANCE of Schlickman and Mrs. Macdonald behind Hoffman was a departure from the last Republican leadership election in 1973. Then Schlickman led the battle to block the reelection of House Speaker W. Robert Blair, and Mrs. Macdonald supported Blair through the seven ballots required to decide the contest.

With Blair unseated from the House in the November elections, remnants of opposition between the Blair and anti-Blair factions remain evident in the GOP leadership fight.

WASHBURN WAS a loyal Blair supporter in the 1972 battle, and before Duff's withdrawal was estimated to hold between 20 and 30 of the 39 votes needed for election as minority leader.

Second in the running was Rep. John Hirschfeld, R-Champaign, who joined with Schlickman in preventing Blair's first-ballot election in 1972. Hirschfeld had an estimated 15 committed votes, but many believed he had reached his maximum.

HOFFMAN SUPPORTERS claimed 10 firm first-ballot votes, but hoped to boost that total to more than 20 if Washburn can be stopped on the first ballot.

In 1972, Hoffman was among those who went along with the unanimous-vote resolution supporting Blair on the first ballot, but switched to Rep. Henry Hyde on subsequent ballots.

Schlickman and Hirschfeld had nominated Hyde after avoiding the unanimous-vote rule by bolting the caucus before it could be passed.

Mohr, Graham see Harris win

Two veteran Republican senators predicted Senate President William C. Harris, R-Pontiac, will withstand a challenge to his leadership at the GOP Senate caucus in Springfield tonight.

Sen. Howard Mohr, R-Forest Park, and Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, assistant majority leaders under Harris, say Harris has enough votes to retain his GOP leadership post on the first ballot. Harris would return as minority leader when the new legislature convenes with a Democratic majority in January.

He will be opposed in the GOP caucus by Sen. Harris Fawell, R-Naperville, who sought the Senate presidency against Harris in 1972.

Raps Daley, Walker

Scott says Dems will run government 'for the pols'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Illinois Atty. Gen. William J. Scott said Tuesday Democratic election victories in Illinois last month will encourage Mayor Richard Daley and Gov. Daniel Walker to operate government "for the pols."

Scott, a Republican, made his remarks at a lunch meeting of the United Republican Fund, the GOP's fund-raising organization.

Scott accused Daley and Walker of "manipulating public opinion with patronage and public relations."

And he said the Nov. 5 election results will encourage them to operate "government of the pols, for the pols and by the pols — and their friends."

"Instead of giving the Democratic party the good housecleaning it so richly deserved this year," Scott said, "the odd couple (Walker and Daley) hid behind a smokescreen of national affairs, dispatched their mercenary precinct workers and their sly PR men, and then sat back and laughed at the people as they voted the Democratic party hacks into high public office."

Correction

The maximum teacher's salary in River Trails Dist. 26 was incorrectly reported in a story on teacher's salaries in Tuesday's Herald.

Dist. 26 officials had provided information for the story reporting the maximum salary as $12,815 this year. The correct figure is $17,405, which is paid to a teacher with a master's degree, 30 additional hours of college credit and 16 or more years of experience.

Phi Kappa Phi member

Debbie Jahnke was recently inducted into Phi Kappa Phi national honor society at Illinois Wesleyan University. To qualify for the society, juniors must be in the upper 5 per cent of their class and seniors must rank in the upper 10 per cent.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Jahnke, 1012 Margret, Des Plaines.

Student teachers

Two Des Plaines students attending Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, were engaged in student teaching during the summer session. Both taught in actual classroom situations under the supervision of the classroom teacher.

Jack Liggett, 587 Webford, was student teaching at Belleville High School and Donna Yatteau, 101 Doreen Dr., was assigned to Mount Vernon High School.

Ford urges trade reform bill passage

President Ford, in a speech to the American Conference on Trade last night said failure of the lameduck Congress to pass trade reform legislation would undermine U.S. political, military and economic commitments around the world. If the trade bill is not passed, Ford said he would be handcuffed in important upcoming negotiations on international trade and tariffs. The bill would confer special status on Russia, though it was conceded no reciprocal liberalization of Soviet emigration policies would be forthcoming.

UMW remains confident of coal pact OK

Despite rejection by various mine union locals of a proposed contract with soft coal producers, United Mine Workers Union officials said Tuesday they were still confident the pact would be ratified by the overall membership. In Illinois, UMW officials eyed local-by-local results — some declining comment, others saying it was too close to call and one saying Illinois miners had voted down the contract.

Officials work to identify TWA victims

With fingerprint experts and medical examiners working to identify the 92 victims of the crash of TWA Flight 514, federal officials said Tuesday it would be at least three weeks before any information would be released on the possible cause of the accident. Everything appeared normal when the plane slammed into a mountainside 23 miles from Dulles International Airport Sunday morning, killing all 92 persons aboard.

Greek Cypriot newspapers in Nicosia said Tuesday Turkish troops were planning new assaults to coincide with the return to Cyprus Friday by President Archbishop Makarios for the first time since he was overthrown in a coup and fled for his life last July. Space experts believe the pair will return to earth Thursday.

Natural gas suit may be filed

Illinois Agriculture Director Robert Williams said Tuesday he will file suit this week against the state's natural gas suppliers unless they agree to supply enough fuel to dry this year's grain harvest. Williams said he would file a class action suit on behalf of the state's grain producers and dealers who have complained they cannot get enough natural gas to artificially dry their crops.

Education benefits increase 23%

Veto of veterans' bill overridden

WASHINGTON (UPI) — By votes of 394 to 10 and 90 to 1, the House and Senate Tuesday overrode President Ford's veto of a bill increasing veterans' educational benefits by 23 per cent.

Ford had anticipated defeat in his pre-Thanksgiving veto but made the gesture anyway as a symbol of his determination to fight inflation by holding down federal spending.

Even before the Senate vote, Ford bowed to reality and sent a message to Capitol Hill requesting a supplemental appropriation to pay the $814 million increase but Congress told Ford through its one-sided margins that the place to start economizing was not with the aid offered veterans who served in the Vietnam conflict, America's most unpopular war.

Ford had said he would accept an 18.5 per cent increase in veterans' benefits, but not the 23 per cent which now becomes law over his objections.

All 10 of the House members who sided with Ford were Republicans. In the Senate, only GOP Whip Robert P. Griffin, Mich., voted to sustain the veto.

The veto was Ford's 15th — and the third to be overridden.

The new law increases education benefits for a single vet from $220 a month to $270. A married vet with no children now will get $321 instead of $261 and those with children will get proportional increases.

Veterans can collect the benefits for 45 months instead of 36 and will get $600 in education loans if other federal loans are not availalbe.

Among the 10 House members who voted against the override attempt were two Illinois congressmen — Rep. Robert Hanrahan, 3rd Dist., and Rep. Harold Collier, 6th Dist.

While Congress voted on the GI education bill, a privately financed study of the nation's veterans programs recommended Tuesday that many of the $15 billion in benefits be integrated into the general social welfare system of the United States.

But the study, prepared by the 20th Century Fund Task Force on Policies Toward Veterans, drew back from recommending immediately dismantling of the Veterans Administration, although one task force member recommended such a course and another indicated that could be the result of the group's recommendations.

In one of its key proposals, the task force said it believes "as a general principle, society should rely on benefits from general social welfare programs to meet the non-service connected needs of veterans."

It said the two most important of these benefits were pensions for wartime veterans and their survivors and medical care for non-service connected health problems.

Other recommendations included creation of a Veterans Educational and Training Fund within the present GI Bill which would give the veteran greater flexibility in the use of his benefits, and the government acting "as an employer of last resort at least for all Vietnam-era veterans for a limited period after their discharge."

As power voted away...

'Terribly tired' Mills in hospital

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. Wilbur Mills entered Bethesda Navy Hospital Tuesday, complaining of exhaustion, as House Democrats voted away more of his power as chairman of the Ways and Means Committee.

"I'm terribly tired," colleagues quoted Mills as saying shortly after the Arkansas Democrat left for the hospital in suburban Bethesda, Md. "I'm exhausted."

Speaker Carl Albert disclosed that Mills — who appeared on stage with stripper Fanne Fox in Boston during the weekend — confided to him on Monday that he was ailing.

"I asked him, 'Wilbur, are you sick?' " Albert said. "He said, 'Yes, I am sick.' "

Disclosure that Mills had entered the hospital came after the Democratic Caucus, comprising all party members elected to the new Congress, voted with no audible dissent to increase the size of the influential Ways and Means Committee from 25 to 37.

This opens the way for increasing the liberal bloc on the committee and diminishing the power Mills has wielded. At the same time, members have concluded privately that Mills' recent activities have made it likely he will be removed as chairman of the panel.

Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., who sat next to Mills during the late afternoon session of the House, said he asked his colleague if something was wrong, and the reply was: "I'm terribly tired. I'm exhausted."

Bennett said he advised Mills to see a doctor or go to a hospital, and that shortly thereafter Mills called aides and was taken to Bethesda.

Mills has appeared despondent since his return from Boston where he appeared with Miss Fox, the entertainer who jumped from his car and then into the Tidal Basin in October after the speeding vehicle, with its lights off, was stopped by police.

He made no effort to prevent action against him by House Democrats, who voted on Monday to strip his committee of the power to make House committee assignments, which it has held since 1911.

Mills had used this authority to sway members who feared they might otherwise be assigned to minor committees with little influence.

Many members of Congress have suggested his removal as committee chairman, and members of his own panel have met to discuss a possible changeover to Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the next in line for the chairmanship.

Gold auction plan plunges prices

From United Press International

The U.S. government's decision to auction 2 million ounces of gold sent gold prices plunging Tuesday and shattered speculators dreams of quick profits when Americans are allowed to own gold bullion after Jan. 1.

Gold mining stocks on the New York Stock Exchange also fell sharply after the announcement of the public sale.

Stock prices of the four major gold mining companies — ASA Ltd., Dome Ltd., Homestake Mining and Crompton & Knowles — dropped $3.13 to $5.63 a share.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon said the government would sell the gold, valued at $360 million at current prices, Jan. 6, just six days after removal of a 40-year ban on private ownership of gold bullion by American citizens.

Simon said there were two reasons for the sale:

• Increasing the supply available for purchase domestically when the ban is lifted may dissuade Americans from seeking to buy gold on foreign markets which would tend to worsen the U.S. balance of payments.

• Since gold in national stockpiles is, by international agreement, priced at $42.22 an ounce, sales at the much higher free market price will earn a tidy profit for the Treasury.

This will reduce the government's need to raise money in the private market to finance its day-to-day operations, "thus leaving more funds available for private investment in housing and other activities."

The amount to be auctioned off represents less than 1 per cent of the total U.S. stockpile.

In the first reaction on European bullion markets, the overall price of gold dropped sharply, even though the announcement came too late to influence most trading.

"This is a smart move by the government," said John Flynn, New York foreign currency dealer. "It shows it has the ability to control the market. Obviously this step was taken to instill some fear in American speculators. If they realize what can happen, they will have second thoughts about investing for purposes of speculation."

Flynn predicted the U.S. government would hold gold sales from time to time after Jan. 1 to "create an orderly market." This possibility was confirmed by Simon's statement the Treasury was prepared to sell more gold if necessary.

Cite possible antiperspirant spray hazard

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Aerosol antiperspirant sprays containing zirconium may cause lung disease and are probably not much better at fighting odor than other sprays without the chemical, according to a new government report.

The Food and Drug Administration study stops short of recommending such sprays should be banned, but it says as many as 100 million Americans may be exposed to the possible hazard and there is an "extremely serious" potential for health problems as a result.

The largest selling aerosol with zirconium is Proctor & Gamble's "Sure." The same company also markets another spray with the metallic element, "Secret," and the makers of "Arrid" have reportedly been test marketing a version of that product with the chemical.

Last year Gillette introduced two products with zirconium — "Extra Strength Right Guard" and "Extra Strength Soft and Dri" — but pulled them off the market after laboratory tests turned up adverse animal reactions.

The report was made by an FDA panel reviewing the safety and effectiveness of antiperspirants as part of the FDA's look at all over-the-counter drugs and cosmetics. A final decision on the matter would be up to the FDA, once it receives the panel's final report.

The problem with zirconium, the report said, is that it enters the air in minute particles which remain suspended for hours and can enter the lungs through breathing. It has the potential for causing an inflamatory cell reaction in the lungs which causes tumors to grow, impairing lung capacity.

The report said not nearly enough tests have been conducted to provide "indisuputable evidence" of such growths being caused by zirconium in the lungs. But it said, "At this point in time the analysis of benefit to risk considerations lead the panel to feel that zirconium compounds should not be sold for use in aersol antiperspirants until the questions raised about their safety are adequately answered."

It said the FDA would have to consider all the benefits and risks before deciding whether to halt sales right now.

It also said any improvement zirconium gives such products over other sprays containing aluminum compounds would only be "slight," adding that there is no evidence zirconium provides any "unique benefit."

Gold auction plan sends prices down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A former White House security aide told the House Judiciary Committee Tuesday that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger once told him that Nelson A. Rockefeller knew of Nixon administration wiretaps on newsmen and national security aides.

A. Russell Ash, a top security aide to Kissinger while he headed the National Security Council, testified that Kissinger called him into his White House office in the fall of 1969 and informed him that the New York governor, now the subject of vice presidential confirmation hearings, had been given the wiretap information.

The vice presidential nominee has denied in testimony before the Senate Rules and House Judiciary Committees that he had any knowledge about the taps before reading about them in the newspapers.

Republicans on the committee derided Ash's testimony as "heresay at about the 4th degree" and many members on both sides declined to question him about his testimony.

Earlier, the committee heard J. Richardson Dilworth, who manages the worldwide empire of the Rockefeller family, estimate its total assets at $1,033,988,000.

Revealing long-kept financial secrets of one of the world's richest families, Dilworth said the figure largely represents stock holdings. It does not include family estates, other personal real estate holdings, art collections and jewelry which some say could easily add another $200 million.

But Dilworth said the huge economic holdings present no conflict of interest for Rockefeller as vice president because "he's not involved in those things. He seldom consults with us."

The nominee already has revealed he and his immediate family have assets totaling $255 million, most of it in trust.

With one dissenting vote, the Republican Governors Assn. Tuesday urged Congress to promptly confirm Rockefeller. The resolution, approved by voice vote, was opposed by New Hampshire Gov. Meldrim Thomson.

Fords select their cards (40,000) and tree

• Chances are about one in 5,000 that you'll get a Christmas card from the Gerald Fords this year. And the chances are better if you work for the government or harken back to the days in Grand Rapids. The first family has ordered about 40,000 cards to be sent out this season, mostly to personal friends and government officials. Mrs. Ford herself selected the design, but it's a secret for now. Wonder who'll lick all those stamps?

• It is coincidence — the White House insists — that Edward Cole of Maryville, Mich., was chosen this year's grand champion Christmas tree grower. And in fact, he was chosen before Ford became president. Coincidence or not, the 1974 White House Christmas tree — a 19½ foot Concolor fir — will come from Michigan, and will be installed in the Blue Room Friday.

• And still more on Christmas: equal job opportunity has come to one of the most unique bastions for males. A New York City temporary services class for department store Santa Clauses has two women, and both — Viola Ilma and Susan Breeze — think it's natural, that the kids will accept it without a blink, and that it really doesn't have all that much to do with women's lib. Nor are they worried about queries about mommy kissing Santa Claus or what does Mrs. Santa Claus do, because those are questions only grown-ups ask.

• Soviet psychiatrists — like their American counterparts — have to deal with the question of whether children should be allowed to play with toy guns. But they have a fast answer, as formulated by Nikolai A. Linkov in answer to a concerned reader of the newspaper Sovieskaya Kultura. What we must keep in mind, he wrote, is that weapons are not only for attack but for protection, and it's all right for children to use toy versions so long as they "play at revolutionary wars of liberation."

• The battle is over for Beverly Harrell, the bordello operator who came within 120 votes of winning a Nevada assembly seat. But she went down fighting. Mrs. Harrell withdrew her request for a recount after county clerks refused to allow ballots to be challenged. "I've learned two things in this election," she said. "First, if the establishment is out to beat you, they will find a way. And also it is clear that our state election laws are sorely in need of reform."

• Remember that glorious night on TV's Tonight Show in 1969 when entertainer Tiny Tim took as his bride "Miss Vicki" Budinger? That was a long time ago, mostly for Miss Vicki, now estranged from Tiny Tim and living somewhere in Europe with their three year old daughter Tulip, after working briefly in a Camden, N. J., lounge as a $5-an-hour go-go dancer. Her misfortune was confirmed by her mother and the manager, who said she didn't want anyone to know she was married to Tiny Tim. And whatever happened to him?

People

• Despite reports last week that the engagement may be off, millionaire heiress Rachel Fitler — the 77-year-old aunt of Happy Rockefeller—says she still expects to marry 29-year-old Michael Wilson, her former chauffeur. It wasn't her doing, she said, when Wilson was ejected by police from her Pennsylvania estate on order of staff members.

• Sign of the times: Seattle police say a 25-year-old man dressed in women's clothing reported his purse snatched.

Now school faces closing

Former Gregory site owner still fighting

by JUDY JOBBITT

Gerald Schroeder, the man who has fought a 15-year war to keep Mount Prospect Dist. 57 from owning the property where Gregory School now stands, is anything but philosophical about the ironic turn of events that may force the district into abandoning the school.

The burly old man stomped around the drab office behind his fruit stand at Rand Road and Thomas Street and insisted the district has no right to the land he's fought so hard to keep.

Flipping off the hunting cap that covers his white crewcut, he stuffed his hands into his stained, baggy work pants and recalled the days when his battle was fierce, when he had a sign printed to let the world know he was being taken by "corrupt politicians" and when he put up a fence and carried a shotgun to keep school officials off his land.

THE DISTRICT NOW is considering closing Gregory, 400 E. Gregory St., because of declining enrollment and looming financial deficit.

But the story was drastically different in 1959 when the district entered condemnation procedures to acquire the property so it could build a school to keep up with the skyrocketing enrollment.

Schroeder swore then, and still contends, that the district was involved in "shenanigans" and political corruption through its dealings. He charges the district was involved in a plot to get the land for a shopping center like Randhurst.

The district tried to negotiate a settlement with Schroeder for the 17 acres at $8,000 per acre but couldn't reach an agreement.

The district won the condemnation procedures and acquired the land for $267,083.33 plus interest.

"Certainly I'm bitter" (about the settlement), Schroeder said. He maintains that property was worth $1 million in 1959.

NOT ONLY DID he lose money on the deal, he says, but his business and the future he could pass on to his family were also lost.

Schroeder refused to leave the property even after the district won full title to the land. Finally an eviction notice was ordered in 1961 and he and his wife were forcibly pushed off.

He moved his fruit stand across the street and put up the sign "corrupt politicians made up their own laws to put us here." He tried to move back two years later and again was pushed off.

The pressure didn't break Schroeder. He persisted and pestered the district through three lawsuits. The district won the "conspiracy" suit in which Schroeder charged the district with the plot.

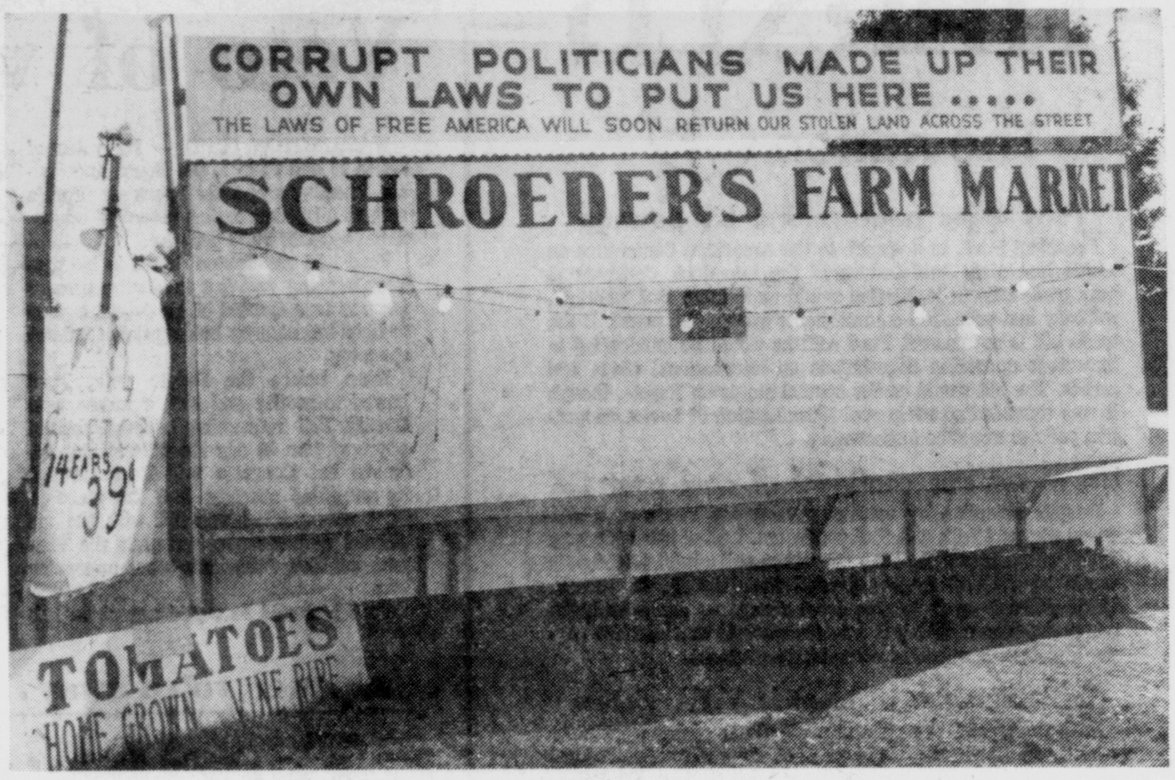
ANOTHER SUIT in which Schroeder claimed his civil rights had been violated and that he did not receive "due process" through the land deal was dismissed. A 1967 suit in which the Schroeders maintained they were still the "rightful owners" also was dismissed.

Schroeder pushed his appeals to the U. S. Supreme Court which finally refused to hear his case last fall. By that time, the Schroeders were contesting a court order prohibiting him from filing any more suits against the district.

The future of Gregory School is still undecided. The Dist. 57 board is considering closing the school as one of several alternatives to avoid a financial deficit because of declining enrollment. Before a final decision is made, public hearings will be held and further studies will be made.

But to Schroeder, whatever happens in the future makes no difference. He gazes out over the Christmas trees and wreaths that now fill his fruit stand and angrily vows "The truth will be known soon."

Sitting in front of the adding machine in the office bundled up in winter clothes to keep out the cold, Mrs. Schroeder nods in agreement. Someday, she said, all will be known. And she'll be the first to tell it, she swears.



THEY STOLE our land is still the battle cry of the Schroeders. Mount Prospect Dist. 57 got the land on Rand Road to build Gregory School, which now might be closed because of declining enrollment. They have fought the district for 15 years over the 17-acre tract and are still just as bitter as when these photos were taken more than a decade ago.

Village board wrapup

Working drawings for garage OKd

The Buffalo Grove Village Board Monday approved working drawings for the planned public works garage.

The board voted to authorize Arlington Heights architect Raymond Knoeppel to design the $529,000 facility with a basement addition that would cost an extra $30,000.

The garage will be built on a 4.3 acre site directly across from the village hall on Raupp Boulevard.

The village acquired title to the land last week and hopes to let bids early next year.

Median landscaping pact

The board approved a supplemental agreement with the Illinois Dept. of Transportation for landscaping of the Dundee Road medians.

Under the pact, the state agrees to sod and plant trees aong the landscaped portions of the dividers while the village will be responsible for maintenance.

The agreement stems from a compromise earlier this year between village officials and local merchants on a median design. It states that sections of mountable and landscaped dividers will be constructed along the two-mile stretch of Dundee Road through Buffalo Grove.

Village officials were seeking landscaping to beautify the roadway while merchants had expressed concern about impeded access to their stores and shops.

Water fees waived for parks

The board voted to waive the park district some $7,200 in water tap on fees for its Raupp Memorial Museum project.

Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said waiving of such fees is normal procedure by the village for tax-supported park and school projects.

The park district, however, will still pay some $460 for water system improvement fees and water meter expenses.

Villa Verde Rd. to close

Villa Verde Road will be closed as soon as a new access route to the Villa Verde apartments, Dundee and Arlington Heights roads, is complete.

The board voted to vacate the road but it will remain open until a new access route off the relocated portion of Arlington Heights Road is finished.

New police desk officer

Police Chief Harry J. Walsh was authorized to hire a new desk officer to replace the policeman assigned to work the Central Dispatch system. The system coordinates police calls for Buffalo Grove and three other departments through a central outlet in Arlington Heights.

Each department participating will contribute personnel for its operation.

Walsh expects to hire a new person next May when the Buffalo Grove Central Dispatch officer is assigned.

NIPC to work on waste plan

The village has given its consent for the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission to coordinate Buffalo Grove's waste treatment as part of a six-county project.

The federally-funded project is designed to bring area water quality up to federal standards by 1983.

The board also approved a variation in village zoning ordinances permitting a resident, William Fredsall, 915 Plum Grove Circle, to construct a room addition to his house.

Protest low fines, case dismissals

Three policemen walk out on judge

by NANCY COWGER

Three Rolling Meadows policemen walked out of Associate Judge John M. Breen Jr.'s courtroom in Arlington Heights Monday, protesting what they considered excessively low fines and numerous case dismissals.

The policemen, two sergeants and a patrolman, returned to the courtroom on orders from Police Chief Lewis R. Case of Rolling Meadows, shortly after their protest. They were back in Breen's court again Tuesday, with Case's instructions to "present their cases like gentlemen."

Participating in the walkout were Sgts. Charles Poellien and Donald Graetz and Patrolman Richard Pletz. They stayed in the hallway during the brief walkout. Three other members of the department — Patrolman Daniel Waligurski and Service Officers Al Jurs and Donald Behrendt — did not join the protest.

JUDGE BREEN admonished the men not to repeat their behavior in a conference after Monday's court session. Case told them he "agreed 100 per cent" with Breen and did not want it to happen again. They could have been cited for contempt of court.

"I told them to go back today, when they all had court, and present their cases like gnetlemen," Case said Tuesday. "You've got to present your case and whatever the judge does, go back. They (judges) are the boss when they're up there" on the bench, said Case. He added "I know their (the men's) frustration but nothing like this can solve it."

Breen declined to comment on the walkout Tuesday, except to say, "They walked out. I could have held them in contempt of court. But I chose not to."

Breen confirmed he had levied fines of $1, plus $1 in court costs, for persons found guilty of parking violations, as the policemen charged.

Breen also confirmed he had spoken to the men after court.

Case has taken the matter up with Breen's boss, Circuit Court Judge Harold Sullivan, chief of the 2nd District, which includes Rolling Meadows. Case asked Sullivan to listen to tape recordings of the day's session.

SULLIVAN SAID Tuesday he will play the tapes, and discuss the incident both with Case and Breen. But Sullivan noted Breen has discretionary power to levy fines and dismiss cases according to his own judgment. That power is "to make the structure of law work, so it's not too rigid," said Sullivan, who endorsed Breen's general conduct.

"My experience with Judge Breen is that he is much more aware of what the law is than most judges. I have yet to see him do anything without the law to back him up," said Sullivan. If the city feels Breen is abusing his discretion, "they have the right to appeal," said Sullivan.

Monday's incident is not the first time area police have complained of alleged leniency or unreasonable requests by 2nd District judges. Case said he and several other police chiefs conferred with Sullivan about seven months ago, when judges were ordering police personnel to appear in court on days when they were scheduled for other duties or time off. The men have regularly assigned court days, and the extra time was costing the municipalities money, Case said.

Case said the difficulty was "ironed out" after the conference with Sullivan, but the same problem is starting to crop up again. "I want it to be fair for the defendant as well ss for us," said Case, who said he feels Sullivan "has always been cooperative — he seems to try and straighten things out."

SULLIVAN SAID the spring meeting was not unusual, and he meets at least once a month with one or more chiefs from the district.

Another suburban police chief, who asked not to be identified, said he was "fed up with his (Breen's) antics in the courtroom," and charged that Breen's attitude is "the public and police be damned." Breen's demands on police are arbitrary, he said.

In the 3rd District, a Hoffman Estates trustee called one judge "a jerk" last May for dismissing an alledged inordinate number of cases for no reason. He charged the judge devoted 90 seconds to each case; suggesting the judge was in a hurry to finish court.

Do-it-yourselfers finding library the place to be

by BETTY LEE

Cookbooks, bestsellers, crafts and other do-it-do-it-yourself books are the most requested works at the Indian Trails Public Library in Wheeling.

People find that borrowing books and other materials from the library is a good way to bide the winter and bear the brunt of inflation, librarians say. "It's a great opportunity and it's cheap to read," Carolyn Ryseff, extension librarian, said.

The circulation at Indian Trails in the past two months has increased by an average of 30 per cent from last year's figure. More than 38 per cent of the Wheeling and Buffalo Grove population now hold library cards.

"People like new books whether they're nonfiction or fiction," said Ruth Bussard, head of circulation. More than half the new and popular books are checked out at most times, she added.

LIBRARIANS FIND that Indian Trails patrons are turning to books on culture and arts. "Records are popular," said Mrs. Bussard. "About 800 to 900 are taken out each month."

Do-it-yourself books have increased in popularity, probably because of the trend to do more activities at home, Mrs. Bussard added. Reports show that the number of these books borrowed have more than doubled in the last four years.

Patrons looking for a good cookbook often take three or four home because there are no limits on how many books can be checked out. "It's just so hard to choose sometimes," Mrs. Bussard said.

Mysteries, gothic novels and science fiction are "perennial favorites" and books on the ecology and environment are "steady."

But books on politics are becoming less sought after, Mrs. Bussard said. So are books on witchcraft and astrology.

ELAINE BURKE, adult services librarian, listed the following as "most-asked-for."

"Creative Aggression" by George Bach.
"Miss Rona" by Rona Barrett.
"Helter Skelter" by Vincent Bugliosi.
"Cavett" by Dick Cavett.
"The Art of Walt Disney" by Christopher Finch.
"Dogs of War" by Frederick Forsyth.

Eagle-eyed Herald carrier helps catch wild turkey

by BOB GALLAS

A runaway wild turkey that spent the Thanksgiving holiday on a whirlwind tour of Arlington Heights has been caught, thanks to a fishnet and an alert Herald carrier boy.

The bird, nicknamed Julie, got away for the second year in a row from the nature center at Thomas Junior High School, 303 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights, during the Thanksgiving holiday.

Though sighted by hundreds of residents, Julie managed to elude captors, hiding in trees and living off bird feeders.

But early Tuesday morning, John Schumacher, 1124 N Belmont Ave., spotted Julie while delivering papers on his Herald newspaper route.

JOHN, A SEVENTH grader at Thomas, put in a quick call to his principal, Robert Spinks, who arrived on the scene with a fishnet and successfully nabbed the elusive bird.

Previous efforts at coaxing Julie down out of the trees with food had failed. Officials were going to try using a tranquilizer gun, but found that it would be too strong for the bird.

As soon as Julie got "home," her wings were clipped, to make sure she doesn't stray again, at least not until next Thanksgiving.

While students and teachers alike were overjoyed to have Julie back in familiar surroundings, nobody was happier than Frank, Julie's "husband."

"FRANK WAS overjoyed. He strutted around for a half hour," said Spinks.

Last year, the two birds escaped together on Thanksgiving, stopping passersby and traffic as they strutted down Arever, Julie flew the coop on her own, leaving behind a lonely Frank.

When she got back Tuesday, "he kept chasing her around so much she couldn't even eat," said Spinks.

Bands to present winter concert

The Cooper Junior High School bands will present a winter concert at 8 p.m. Thursday in the school auditorium, 1050 W. Plum Grove Rd., Buffalo Grove.

Stan Kenton receives standing ovation with a smile.

The Jazzman!

The big band sound filled the Rolling Meadows High School gym Monday night as "the father of jazz," Stan Kenton, and his orchestra appeared in the first of a three-part jazz concert series.

Spending most of his time at the piano, Kenton opened the show with his ballad arrangement of "My Funny Valentine" and then treated his audience to the tunes he made famous including "Artistry in Rhythm," his theme, and "Minor Booze."

One of the great innovators of jazz in the 1940s, Kenton appeared with a young band playing songs from its new album, "Kenton Plays Chicago."

The series, sponsored by the Rolling Meadows High School Band Booster Organization, will continue Jan. 28 when trumpeter Maynard Ferguson makes his third appearance at the school.

Woody Herman and his Thundering Herd will close the series Feb. 24.

Individual tickets to the concerts are $4 and are available at the high school office.

Chamber urges repeal of safety, health law

The Illinois Chamber of Commerce Tuesday called for repeal of the state's year-old occupational safety and health law, but a United Auto Workers' official said the state law should not "be junked."

Leonard Day, labor relations manager of the 19,000-member statewide business organization, and Dewitt Gilpin, legislative coordinator for the UAW, were among persons testifying at a public hearing of the Illinois Senate subcommittee on the state's occupational safety and health unit.

The committee, chaired by State Sen. John Nimrod, R-Skokie, was attempting to find ways of improving the state's enforcement of the law in light of a barrage of criticism.

Sen. John Nimrod

THE U.S. LABOR Dept. recently issued a 139-page report accusing Illinois of doing a poor job of inspecting business sites for job hazards that could lead to employe injuries or deaths.

"The state Chamber believes it would be a mistake to even try to correct the many shortcomings of the Illinois OSHA Occupational Safety and Health Act program," Day testified. "The best way to go financially, administratively and effectively is to repeal the Illinois law in favor of complete federalization of the OSHA program."

Under the present plan, Illinois has three years to bring the state's performance up to federal expectation. If this is not done, the Labor Dept. will resume the inspections.

Gilpin said he was opposed to "junking the law" in favor of the federal law. "What we need is a policy of aggressively enforcing the law," Gilpin said.

GILPIN SAID it is unthinkable that industry will automatically comply with a law that it didn't want in the first place. He criticized the inspection process of the state, saying many state inspectors were not qualified for the job.

"We need to seek a way, the state legislature and the governor, to take inspectors out of their current setup, making them a separate agency concentrating on only enforcement," Gilpin said.

In the government's report, inspectors received the severest criticism. The government charged that state inspectors failed to follow proper inspection procedures, to enforce regulations, to inform employers of the purpose of their visits and to interview an adequate number of employes about job conditions.

The inspections are administered by the Illinois Dept. of Labor and the Illinois Industrial Commission. But Gov. Daniel Walker, in an apparent effort to improve the situation, Tuesday announced the hiring of Rachel Scott, former labor reporter for the Baltimore Sun, to supervise safety in the state.

Miss Scott, author of a book on health and safety, will be paid $25,000 in the new post.

TEEMING HOLIDAY SHOPPERS usually signal the beginning of the seasonal part-time employment so many families have learned to depend on for extra expenses. This year, the holiday job outlook appears pretty good, although some large retailers are cutting back on part-time help. Others still are hiring as usual, however

Local market promising for part-time workers

by TONI GINNETTI

In the gloomy shadow of the current economy, there may be at least one bright spot locally this Christmas season.

Housewives and students home for the holidays and in search of seasonal part-time jobs will have a fair chance of finding it, according to most retailers at the Woodfield and Randhurst shopping centers.

Many merchants report they will be hiring at least as many part-time sales clerks and extra help as in past years. They are confident, too, that this Yule's selling season will be as good as ever.

Only two major outlets, Carson Pirie Scott and Co. at Randhurst and Marshall Field and Co. at Woodfield, will hire less help this year because of economic conditions.

SPOKESMEN FOR MOST large stores at Woodfield and Randhurst say hiring for the Christmas season already has begun and in some cases has been completed. Salaries starting at about $2.10 per hour are paid by most stores. Higher salary is paid according to experience.

At Carson's and Field's hiring ended earlier than in past years. Jane Hampson, personnel director at Carson's, said hiring ended last week because the store does not expect the traditional volume of Christmas shoppers.

The hiring policy applies to all Carson outlets.

"Hopefully we will have (the same number of shoppers,) but I don't think that is the way it will be," she said. "We usually have all the people we hire by Thanksgiving."

AT FIELD'S MANY clerks have been hired in the past for the December shopping crunch. This year some have been hired and other may be added in the next few weeks, a Field's spokesman in Chicago said, but the total is not likely to be as high as in the past.

"We are not hiring at the moment, but we did a lot of hiring and training for Christmas earlier this year than last year," store manager William Ingles said. Many clerks were hired in October and early November this year, he said.

FOR MOST OTHER stores, however, the push is on to get workers for what they are hoping will be a good season despite the economy.

Gerry Dempsey, assistant manager of Woodfield, is optimistic about the Christmas prospects.

"Traditionally there are many jobs available during the Christmas season and I don't think this season will be any different," he said. The merchants' association already has begun hiring additional persons for the mall, Dempsey said.

"We are hiring extra cleaning people, Santa Clauses, Santa's helpers and promotional people. I don't think this Christmas will be too different," he added. "I think the economy certainly will affect us a little, but we have more than 200 stores and shops here. Hopefully we will have the draw that will make people come here to shop."

AT THE MONTGOMERY WARD store in Randhurst, hiring for the season already has ended with a slightly higher number of part-timers this year, personnel director Frank Warren said.

About 80 selling and non-selling extras will be working at the store, he said.

"We're still hoping we'll get the business and when business continues you need the additional sales clerks," Warren said. "We're still thinking positively and the business seems to be coming so there's no reason to cut back."

WIEBOLT'S DEPARTMENT store personnel director Marie Abrahamson said extra Christmas help has been hired and the number is "not appreciably any different" than in the past. She said college students who have worked at the store before usually are hired along with others.

She added store officials are "keeping their fingers crossed" that the buying volume will be good this year.

Spokesmen for other stores in Woodfield for the most part say they are gearing for a healthy Chrsitmas season.

"We have already started hiring," a personnel department spokesman for Sears, Roebuck and Co. at Woodfield said. "We have about 70 people already."

MANY PERSONS ARE being hired by J. C. Penney Co., personnel spokesman Joy Chase said. "We never had any question about it," Mrs. Chase said of hiring the additional help.

Spokesmen for Madigans department store, Baskin clothing store, Lerner Shops and Maurice L. Rothschild also have begun hiring.

"I'm expecting a great business," Lerner's store manager Dan Finlay said. He said he expected to hire the 10 extra employes he has in the past. "I started thinking about it and planning in September."

A number of other smaller shops at the Schaumburg mall, including Albert's Hosiery, Two Plus Two, The Jewelry Box, Morse, Baskin-Robbins, Wimpy's and Maternity Modes, have posted signs for full-and part-time help.

24-hour phone to aid employers

Gov. Daniel Walker Tuesday announced a new public-relations campaign aimed at getting northeastern Illinois employers to hire more people immediately.

Walker told a news conference the state will have 24-hour telephone service through which employers can obtain new workers.

"Even with unemployment, many jobs go unfilled simply because not enough people know the jobs even exist," Walker said. "We are saying to businessmen, 'here is your opportunity to hire . . .' "

Christopher Nugent, who heads the state's employment program, said the hiring campaign will be aimed at employers in Chicago, Aurora, Elgin, Joliet and Waukegan.

In that area, he said, the state gets between 50,000 and 60,000 job applicants a month, and is normally able to place between 10,000 and 15,000.

Nugent said any employer who has a job opening should call (312) 793-4000 any time, day or night.

Fire destroys Simonini's Restaurant

A Monday-night fire destroyed the Simonini Restaurant, a landmark in Algonquin. No injuries were reported.

Fire department units from three nearby communities helped Algonquin firemen put out the blaze which authorities said began near a fireplace in the three-story building.

No damage estimates were available.

3rd highest traffic toll

Illinois reported the third highest Thanksgiving holiday traffic death total in the nation.

A total of 489 persons died in traffic accidents nationwide, including 53 in California, 35 in New York and 32 in Illinois.

In one of the worst traffic accidents in the country, four children of a family returning to Milwaukee from a holiday get-together were killed late Sunday night. Ten other persons were seriously injured in the two-car collision on the Tri-State Tollway near Northbrook.

Police said the accident occurred shortly before midnight. Olden Meadows Sr., 32, father of the four dead children, apparently fell asleep at the wheel of his station wagon as it went into a curve and struck a station wagon driven by Jeffery A. Carsello, 36, Chicago.

Secret operations control?

Secret government operations should be supervised by a Congressional committee or should be ended. Chicago attorney Alex Seith said in testimony before a presidential-congressional study commission meeting in Chicago.

"Stricter control through a newly formed joint congressional committee on covert operations would drastically reduce the number of covert ventures and would assure that the remaining few are demonstrably in the national interest," he said.

Seith, who compared the Central Intelligence Agency to a "President's private army," said the CIA should be prohibited from engaging in all covert activities.

There is a limit to the amount of secrecy the nation will tolerate and "the bounds of the intolerable have been far exceeded," he said.

Busboy with a sweet tooth

Sweet opportunity caused the arrest of a 17-year-old Loop busboy Tuesday.

Kenneth Coe was charged with theft and with violation of state curfew when a Chicago patrolman saw Coe dragging a 50-pound sack of sugar, valued at $32.50, toward a subway stop. The sugar was the property of Coe's employer.

Metcalfe won't run

Despite backing of the Chicago Committee for a Black Mayor, U. S. Rep. Ralph Metcalfe, D-1st, said Tuesday he will not run for mayor.

Metcalfe's announcement came only two days after City Hall sources said Mayor Richard J. Daley, 72, will seek a sixth term in 1975. Daley is expected to make a formal announcement this week.

The Chicago congressman denied Daley was a factor in his decision. "Nobody, individuals or groups, influenced me or frightened me or dealt with me in such a mater that forced me to decide to make this final decision," Metcalfe said.

Pressure mounts for tough economic plan

From Herald news services

Concern over the nation's recession coupled with disappointment in President Ford's televised news conference sent prices plunging Tuesday on the New York Stock Exchange.

Analysts said Wall Street is growing skeptical about Ford's leadership and some investors are disappointed that the President did not produce any new incentives in his Monday night press conference.

On Capitol Hill, dire warnings were sounded in the wake of Ford's generally upbeat view of the economy. Many Congressmen expressed a belief that Ford has failed to grasp the unique situation of a recession-inflation economy and moreover does not have any solutions.

One of the first to respond to the President's call for legislative approval fo his economic program was Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., a member of the House Banking and Currency Committee and the Joint Economic Committee of both houses.

REUSS SAID Tuesday that Congress could cause economic "disaster" in the country if it passes Ford's proposals to battle inflation. He said they consist of a 5 per cent surtax on middle-income people and "new loopholes" for the wealthy and corporations. He said the surtax would take money that might be used for purchases and "turn a recession into a depression."

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Tuesday here is a "growing sense of frustration" at the White House over the failure of Congress to act on President Ford's economic package and criticism of his program to fight inflation and recession.

Nessen's remarks were prompted by a comment by Sen. Barry M. Goldwater, R-Ariz., Monday that Ford should leave Air Force 1 in the hangar for the next eight months and spend more time on domestic problems.

He described Goldwater's criticism as "unfair" and added that Ford "wants to get the country out of this economic mess" and "unless Congress acts, it's unfair to criticize him."

He said the President's plan "is to get rid of long-range deep inflation" while reviewing "constantly" the shift toward recession.

IN HIS PRESS conference Monday night, Ford sought to curb a "depression psychology" spreading across the nation by warning that problems of the economy were being aggravated by fear and talk about hard times.

Asserting that times are nowhere as desperate as during the Great Depression, Ford said, "Our greatest danger today is to fall victim to the more exaggerated alarms."

Echoing this White House view, L. William Seidman, Ford's top economic advisor, Tuesday told GOP governors meeting in St. Louis there was a need "to restore the confidence of the American consumer so he will not go hide — so he will buy, but buy wisely — and does not think he has a 1932 depression on his hands."

He said there was "just no similarity" beween today's economic conditions and those which existed during the 1930s.

William A. Raftery, named Tuesday to head the industry coordinating committee of Ford's citizens anti-inflation program, also was optimistic for the future — but said companies must make "self-sacrificing price cuts" to end the nation's inflationary spiral.

He called for "a basic change in thinking" so there is general agreement "we've got to give a little bit to stabilize the economy and get the country back on its feet. That's going to mean a lot of self-sacrificing price cuts."

WITH WORKER layoffs now exceeding 215,000 and sales, continuing to lag, there was increased attention focused Tuesday on the crucial auto industry.

Expressing the administration's deepening concern over the dramatic dropoff in car sales, Seidman said "The consumer has decided he does not want to buy automobiles. The purchsing power is there — it's probably a matter of attitude."

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., offered the automotive industry some advice on how to end the current sales slump: "Cut the price."

Humphrey said the auto industry talks free enterprise but operates as a monopolistic enterprise.

"We have these big combines that sit there and say they can't cut the price," he charged. "They say they have to raise the price. And then they just take out another newspaper ad."

But Thomas A. Murphy, new chairman of General Motors, said that too much attention has been placed n the price increases in cars.

SINGLING OUT the news media for special criticisms, Murphy said there has been too much emphasis put "on the negative and very little on the positive." He said the news media should pay more attention to the fact that "more people are working than ever before" and less on the 6 per cent that are unemployed and on the high auto industry layoffs.

He urged the press and government officials to stop "doom and gloom talk" about the economy that is wrecking consumer confidence, hurting car sales and contributing to recessionary woes.

"All the gloom and doom talk can't dissuade me from the fact that economically we're still very strong and we're going to pull out of this thing together," Murphy said.

Herald opinion

Leadership must come from President's office

No longer can we afford an absence of strong White House leadership that prevents us from solving this nation's critical domestic problems.

GERALD FORD

For several months we've watched as President Gerald Ford has settled comfortably into the recently vacated White House. He's proven to be a President in motion, a man capable of whirlwind political tours of this nation, as well as a successful negotiator in the arena of world diplomacy.

Now, however, it's time for the President to put behind him the whistle-stop political tours and diplomatic jaunts and spend more of his time actively confronting this nation's internal problems. Inflation and the recession, if they are to be controlled, require more than White House rhetoric and WIN buttons.

In past years, when presidential leadership faltered, Congress was eager to fill the void. But in 1974, Congress seems incapable of providing crisp, effective leadership in helping us solve our problems, and so additional responsibility must rest with the President.

Almost five months after Nixon's resignation, it's about time that Ford took the fullest possible leadership responsibility for our nation's domestic direction, especially as our economy continues to deteriorate. Whatever period of grace Ford earned when he replaced Nixon, that period has now ended.

An important step for the President would be to select his own cabinet, to make it a Ford, rather than a Nixon, cabinet.

Some members, such as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, obviously should remain. Others, however, such as Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz, should be replaced immediately with persons who display more sensitivity towards the problems confronting Americans today.

As a people we look towards Gerald Ford with the aching hope that this man will offer us sound, rational leadership away from the economic perils which have driven segments of this nation towards despair. Ford, and Ford alone, can help mobilize the energy of the nation and can help lead our economy towards a more stable direction.

As shown in Ford's press conference Monday night, he's aware of the dimensions of this nation's economic crisis. His next step is to help lead all of us, with the strong machinery of government behind him, towards economic sanity. He should begin that leadership now.

'We don't need a Veep'

WASHINGTON — Room 2203 of the Dirksen Senate Office Building may be the most slugabed, least necessary chamber on Capitol Hill. It belongs to the vice president of the Republic, when there is a vice president of the Republic, and therefore, like the other aspects of his office, Room 2203 has no meaning other than atmospheric nor any responsibility save that of weak custom. Outsiders call the chamber the "half-vast wasteland." So do some insiders.

"We have one constitutional duty," says a staffer, "that is, we are a part of the logging system for foreign correspondence. We check it in and pass it on. Other than this, we aren't overworked. I think we have 24-25 people on the staff, the office budget is about a half million a year — but, I think it's a waste. If we all stayed home for a month, the nation wouldn't miss us a twit."

Indeed, it is true that the Capitol Hill office of the vice president is something less than critically important to the gears of government. And by extension, the same is now and again being said about all Washington offices of the V.P., including the constitutional office as well.

Even as Congress continues to examine the personal and political qualifications of nominee Nelson Rockefeller, thoughtful observers are wondering whether the post, which Rockefeller himself has referred to as "seconds," is necessary at all.

Critics of the Veep office (the term veep is an affectionate acronym; other nicknames are rated X) are not sudden creations. Politics have, for 200 years, decried the worthlessness of the position. Historians such as Arthur Schlesinger Jr., have felt the office is entirely political, totally undemocratic, thus "mischievous."

In a Midwest poll taken by a newspaper 50 years ago, only half of those asked could name the sitting vice president. One responded that, "well, whoever he is, he should be ashamed — why doesn't he get a job?"

Now the issue may be brought out of the context of snickers and into more serious public discussion. Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., is putting his personal weight behind a proposal to abolish the vice presidency once and for all. This week Kennedy will introduce legislation aimed at replacing the 25th Amendment (presidential succession) with laws mandating special elections "whenever presidents are unable to fill out terms"; his idea is to assure that presidential vacancies, in the future, will not be filled by appointees, political hack V.P.s or those who can fast talk a nod out of 500 members of Congress — but by those who are freely elected.

Th plan is timely at the least. Its ratification would not only insure that never again would a U.S. president, like a dictator, choose his own successor or potential successor, but it would do away with one of the most blatant anti-democratic legalities in the land.

Not since the first quarter century of the nation's life have Americans truly chosen a vice president by popular vote. What they've done is to agree with the presidential candidate's choice. In three instances in the last quarter century, those choices have gone on to the presidency with no mandate or constituency of their own.

For all the logic of Kennedy's proposal, though, it is undoubtedly doomed to fail. Congress does not easily eliminate tapestries from government, even those which are outdated and shoddy. Besides, Kennedy's plan smacks to some as quasi-parliamentary — new elections any time — and such is un-American.

Thus, Room 2203 is likely to continue functioning on Capitol Hill, if ho-humming is functioning. Indeed, there are presently great expectations of some real activity ahead. "When Rockefeller is named, we'll put his picture on the walls," says the office staffer. "Changing pictures is a big thing in an office like this."

Clark Mollenhoff's 'Watch on Washington'

Why Nixon kept tapes is a Watergate mystery

by CLARK R. MOLLENHOFF

WASHINGTON—Listening in John Sirica's courtroom to the White House tapes on the Watergate cover-up makes it apparent why a desperate President Nixon went to such extremes to hide their contents.

What is remarkable, in the light of their contents, is that the embattled President did not have the tapes destroyed, even if that step had placed him in contempt of court or in contempt of Congress.

The last dozen tapes, made public for the first time in the course of the Watergate cover-up trial, establish through the unmistakable tones of Nixon's own voice and unambiguous terms that he was in charge of the criminal obstruction of justice.

By hindsight, Nixon might have avoided exposure of his criminal conduct if he had had the foresight to stop making the White House tapes on June 23, 1972 — when he first recognized that E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy were involved.

But White House tapes continued to operate, making a nearly complete record of Nixon's role in the effort to misuse the CIA and FBI in hiding the source of the more than $5,000 in $100 bills that was found on the burglars.

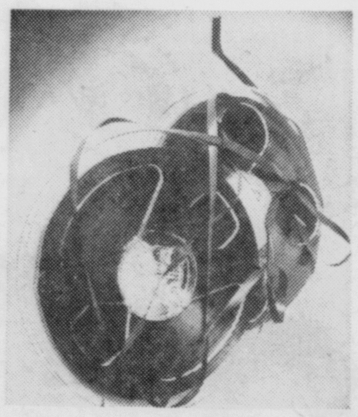
It is now established that Nixon and Bob Haldeman were consciously aware that their conversations were being recorded, for reference was made to the contents of the tapes discussing the defection of White House Counsel John W. Dean III and Jeb S. Magruder, deputy director of the Nixon re-election committee. But Nixon also indicated an understanding that he could not unveil the recordings to contradict Dean because it would expose the whole system.

Only Nixon knows why the ultimate incriminating evidence was kept in the face of Special Assistant John D. Ehrlichman's assertions that Congress might try to impeach Nixon for the crime of obstruction of justice.

It is unlikely that Nixon will ever reveal whether this was due to ignorance of the danger, ignorance of the law, an arrogant belief in his ability to stonewall Congress or an egotist's blind desire to retain the tapes for his presidential library.

The record indicates that the earliest time that Nixon recognized the full danger of the tapes was in mid-July, when the Senate Watergate Committee exposed the existence of the taping system in the testimony of Alexander P. Butterfield, a former deputy assistant to the President.

It is often asked, why didn't Nixon destroy the tapes immediately after the Butterfield testimony, when it was apparent to the special prosecutor and the Senate Committee that those tapes would establish the truth or falsity of Dean's testimony?



What is overlooked in that question is the fact that the Senate Committee had issued a subpoena to the President that covered any existing tapes and recordings of Dean's conversations with President Nixon. That subpoena had been authorized by Chairman Sam Ervin because Dean had testified he believed that at least one of his conversations with Nixon might have been recorded. After that, Nixon or any of his subordinates would have been risking contempt of Congress if they took part in or authorized destruction of the tapes.

From legislative and judicial demands that he produce the tapes, Nixon's choices were limited to:

- Producing the tapes that he knew would establish his guilt beyond any reasonable doubt.
- Risking not producing the tapes and risking Congress and the federal courts.
- Engaging in the outrageous use of executive privilege, false press statements and stonewalling.

Nixon chose the executive privilege route as the lesser of the evil alternatives before him, and voluntarily proceeded on a path of lies and deceptions up to and including his final resignation.

Reviewing that record, it is understandable why the former president would not want to give testimony under oath and undergo the tough cross-examination he would be likely to receive from prosecutors and defense lawyers alike.

Band and leader praised

Fence post
letters to the editor

In reference to Mrs. Paul Tufte's comment in Fence Post concerning the John Hersey High School Band and their Band Director, I have a few comments to make as a student of that band.

If it wasn't for Mr. Donald Caneva's enthusiasm, interest and hard work we would not have received an invitation to march in the Rose Bowl parade. Mr. Caneva made our band the "winning band." Without the proper leadership a band would be nothing. Many hours that could have been spent with his family were spent working with the band both individually and collectively. We at Hersey are extremely fortunate to have such a dedicated man as band director at Hersey High School.

After reading several letters about the Hersey Band, ending with that written by Mrs. Tufte on Nov. 29, may I, as a band parent, change a misconception?

Reading the letter, I imagine an immature dictator type director whipping these young things into a frenzy, preaching win - win - win, demanding all their time and attention. It almost makes me feel sorry for the band members. Not true!

I thank Mrs. Tufte for her plea to stop bickering about the money and where it comes from. I would like to impress upon her that these youngsters like to win. They are not forced to win, merely led, and led well I might add. Take 180 youngsters with some talent and minds of their own — add a strong young director who knows what they can do and shows them the way — also add encouraging parents and a cooperative school administration, and you can give tribute where it is due — to the winning combination.

The band members have not given up anything in the process. As an example, my daughter, who is a sophomore, plays the saxophone and works hard at it, however, she seems able, in spite of being in the band, to be an honor student, to work approximately seven hours a week, to be an active member of the Spanish club, American Field Service Club and the jazz band. It's true she has had to give up roaming the streets, joy riding in fast cars, hanging around shopping centers and getting into trouble. This is not, however, a tribute to my daughter. She is not unusual. There are band members who are smarter, more active and better musicians.

I have a strong feeling that those who "make it" in the band will "make it" in their adult years. No "buts" about it.

'Suburban youth need a voice'

I want to tell you I enjoyed your article "Suburbanites' mood — they believe . . ." When you read the ideas and opinions of other people, it makes you think about your own views on society, economy and life. It's good to clear out your mind once in a while!

I just want to bring up one point. Don't students in the suburbs have an opinion on anything? I don't think a single person in your article was of high school or college age. Some of our opinions may be a bit more rational or irrational than those of the people in your article. I loved your article but I would like to see the youth of the suburbs represented!

A glossary of commonly used economic terms:

Depression

An extended period of economic decline with exceedingly high unemployment, low corporate profits, low prices, drastic production cutbacks and bankruptcies. The United States had two severe depressions, in 1873-79 and 1929-33.

Recession

A short period of economic decline with moderately high unemployment, some reduction in corporate profits, a slight decline in industrial production and somewhat lower prices. Since World War II but excluding the present, the United States has been through five recessions: 1948-49, 1953-54, 1957-58, 1960-61 and 1969-70. The average length was 12 months.

Inflation

Continually spiraling prices and wages, each feeding on the other to produce even higher prices and wages. A normal annual rate of inflation would be 2 to 4 per cent.

Double-digit inflation

When inflation increases at an annual rate in excess of 10 per cent as it is today at 12 per cent.

Stagflation

A term used to describe an economic slowdown, a recession, and higher prices, inflation, at the same time. Popularly used to describe the present economic situation.

Consumer price index

The scale by which the government figures the rise and fall of prices of consumer goods.

Gross National Product

A government measurement of the value of the nation's total output of goods and services. The GNP for the United States last year was $1.4 trillion.

Prime rate

The rate commercial banks charge their most creditworthy corporate customers and the base from which interest for most other loans — business and consumer — is scaled upwards. The prime rate now is about 10½ per cent; most consumer loans run about 18 per cent.

Federal reserve system

The nation's central banking mechanism, an autonomous government body, to which all commercial banks chartered by the federal government must belong. State-chartered banks may belong. The Fed, as it is sometimes called, controls the flow of money within the nation's banking system.

Monetary policy

Most generally used to describe the way the Federal Reserve controls the nation's money supply.

Tight money

The situation when the Federal Reserve restricts the money supply into the banking system to reduce credit available to corporations and consumers. To control inflation, the Fed imposed a tight money policy to decrease the amount of money available to spend.

Easy money

The condition when the Federal Reserve allows a free flow of money into the economy to stimulate business activity, industrial expansion and more jobs. This would be used to counteract a severe recession or a depression.

Balance of payments

The difference between the value of goods a country exports and those it imports. A negative balance of payments results when a country imports more than it exports — a trade imbalance. A favorable balance occurs when a country exports more than it imports.

Petrodollars

Surplus funds accumulated by major oil exporting countries, chiefly Arab nations and Iran, through quadrupling oil prices. Conservative estimates pace the surplus at $60 billion.

What the world needs to rid itself of inflation, said one economist only half in jest, is a good old-fashioned recession.

The recession has arrived. Maybe it was here all along. But inflation is slow to get the message and hangs on.

So now free market economies of the world are beseiged by the two-headed monster of inflation and recession, and pessimists warn of a depression ahead.

It is an unprecedented economic mess. No one knows for sure why it happened and no one knows for sure how to put things right, though there are plenty of opinions about both.

INFLATION ARRIVED first. Inflation is when everything costs more and more and more. If wages go up to compensate, that means higher labor costs and, in a vicious cycle, higher prices. So it goes.

The traditional way to curb inflation is to apply brakes on the economy by making money less available. But most economists now say this would put the United States into a recession that would exceed in length and severity any economic decline since before World War II.

Prices may well decline or at least stabilize, but the toll will be high. More than 6 million persons will be jobless. Many consumer items will be scarce and corporate profits will drop.

The Arab oil embargo, the fourfold increase in crude oil prices by the major oil exporting nations and skyrocketing food prices, made inflation public enemy number one. But these developments, frightful as they are, were not present at the start of this inflationary period.

IN ORTHODOX economic terms, inflation began because there was "too much money chasing too few goods." Nearly all economists agree that governments were to blame for this.

The current round of inflation in the United States is the creature of huge government expenditures of borrowed money to finance ventures that did not put equal value in goods back into the economy. Governments create more money by spending more; but if the additional money does not produce equal value in goods, too much money ends up chasing too few goods. Ergo, inflation.

From 1964 to 1974 the nation's money supply increased by 120 per cent while production increased only 50 per cent, says monetary expert Sidney E. Rolfe. Most of the additional money was used to finance the Vietnam War. Billions were

THE CHIEF EVIDENCE that the economy is weakening came in the Federal Reserve Board's report that industrial output declined 0.6 per cent in October, the steepest drop since February.

Arabs, Iran hold the money

Petrodollars could break U.S., others

by United Press International

It is conceivable that a handful of Arab nations and Iran could make or break the mighty U.S. economy as well as the economies of other industrial nations.

In less than two years, the oil-rich Arab nations have accumulated billions of dollars in a transfer of economic power unprecedented in history.

In one year, Saudi Arabia tripled its monetary reserves to $11.5 billion making it the fourth richest in the world behind West Germany, the United States and Japan.

By conservative estimates, the Arab oil exporting nations have accumulated some $60 billion in reserves, nearly equaling the $70 billion in after-tax profits of all U.S. corporations.

WHAT THIS MEANS in effect is that the newly acquired wealth of the oil exporting nations is sufficient to buy most of the U.S. economy and more than enough to seize economic control over other major industrial powers.

This vast new wealth was accumulated in less than 18 months through the quadrupling of crude oil prices by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which produce 70 per cent of the world's exported oil.

The rich are likely to get richer. The World Bank estimates that by 1980, OPEC countries will have accumulated $650 billion in surplus funds and by the end of 1985, $1.2 trillion.

The sudden transfer of billions of dollars to the treasuries of OPEC nations put a severe strain on the world's financial structure, contributed to worldwide inflation and placed some nations, such as Italy, on the verge of bankruptcy.

MONEY IS POWER, and how the newly-rich Arab nations use it will in large part determine how the free market economies of the world weather the current economic storm.

Walter J. Levy, an independent oil consultant, predicts that until the oil exporting nations are able to absorb the vast influx of "petrodollars" into their own economies "their surplus claims on the

Some economists warn recession may become depression

spent on military hardware that was destroyed or was of no civilian use.

Because it was a politically unpopular war, taxes were not levied to pay for it, and it was fought on credit.

AT THE SAME time, Americans awoke to all kinds of threats to the environment and the safety of workers. Industries were forced by law or consumer pressure to divert large sums into fixing or replacing facilities that did not meet reasonable standards.

In social terms, the money was well spent. But it did not increase the supply of goods. The nation's space program also was largely nonproductive in the sense of creating more goods.

"In other words," said Irwin Kellner, a banking economist, "we sought to do many different things simultaneously, all of which had the result of restraining supplies while increasing demand."

U. S. inflation travels

Inflation made in America was exported unwittingly to other free market economies, some of which had already started down the same road.

In the late 60s, inflation had raised the price of goods in the United States to a point where American products could not compete in Europe or Japan, thus cutting exports. Foreign goods could be sold more cheaply than American products in the U.S. market and imports increased dramatically. For the first time in the 20th Century, the United States was importing more goods than it was exporting.

The trade imbalance and anticipation of a devaluation of the dollar resulted in billions of dollars flowing out of the United States into Europe and Japan. So there, as well, evolved the "classic situation:" Too much money chasing too few goods.

Devaluation of the dollar and upward adjustments in the currencies of other industrial nations, chiefly Japan and West Germany, brought some stabilization to the international monetary system and helped straighten out the U.S. trade imbalance. But at the same time it contributed to U.S. inflation by reducing the supply of cheap imported goods.

TO RESTRAIN inflation the Nixon administration imposed wage and price controls. Then it removed them. Business and labor used the opportunity to catch up with higher prices and wages. Inflation was given new life. So the government sought to restrain the economy by reducing the flow of money through the Federal Reserve Bank.

Interest rates soared to record highs and businesses had trouble borrowing money for expansion. Home loans were difficult to get. Overall productivity declined and the recession began, hitting hard the construction and auto industries.

Still inflation did not falter. Drought and other adverse weather reduced harvests in the United States and elsewhere, creating shortages and sending food prices soaring.

In September, the Federal Reserve relaxed its tight policy and poured billions of dollars into the economy to offset the recession by making more money available for industry to spend on expansion. Many economists think more of the same is needed.

"Fully 58 per cent of our current inflation rate is accounted for by just two items — food and fuel," Kellner, the banking economist, explained.

"Recognition of this, therefore, should give us some lessons for policy. Reliance on an overly restrictive monetary fiscal policy is not going to bring down the price of oil nor is it going to enlarge our food supplies. But it will prolong and deepen our recession. The key to this whole thing is productivity. Through increases in productivity you can reduce inflation."

Inflation has a history

Inflation is not new to the world. Periods of rising prices and decreasing currency values have followed most wars in this and earlier centuries.

Inflation was rampant in the United States in 1812, 1866 and 1920. In a pattern somewhat similar to today, prices rose swiftly following the end of World War I to a peak in July 1920 when industrial production and prices began a steady decline.

Recessions are not new, either. Since World War II and excluding the present, the United States has gone through five recessions — in 1948-49, 1953-54, 1957-58, 1960-61 and 1969-70. The average length was 12 months, and many economists who date the current recession from Oct. 1, 1973 say it will be the longest and the most severe.

A recession is traditionally defined as three consecutive quarters of decline in the Gross National Product. What is unique about today's recession is that inflation has not eased as the economy has slowed. The continuing spiraling of prices reflects primarily two unexpected and largely uncontrollable factors — the quadrupling of oil prices and high food prices.

SOME ECONOMISTS say the danger is now depression.

"Recession is a bromic word," said economists Eliot Janeway. "The danger is depression. We've been through plenty of recessions. They are unplesant and costly but they are not catastrophic."

The depression will hit home, he said, when unemployment reaches 11 or 12 per cent, there is "mass bankruptcy" and the U.S. Treasury goes broke trying to borrow while the economy is shut down.

THE FEDERAL DEPOSIT Insurance Corp. functions to prevent mass bank failures and to protect deposits through insurance. Unemployment benefits and Social Security benefits help cushion the loss of jobs and support the elderly.

But, said a First National City Bank economist, "The chief point to grasp is that in th 1930s a U.S. recession, induced by monetary restraint, was allowed to get out of hand."

"No central bank today would — or politically could — repeat the Fed's dismal 1928-32 performance," the economist said. "With this crucial element missing, a catastrophe of the 1930s type is not likely to recur."

Indeed, the Federal Reserve seems to have relaxed its tight money policy, which was designed to cure inflation with a dose of recession.

Now the question is, will the cure for the cold lead to pneumonia?

Petrodollars break economies

rest of the world's future will go on pyramiding."

Nations that rely heavily on imported oil "from a range of Italy down to India" are now, or soon will be, broke, heavily in debt to the oil producers, Levy said. The United States and West Germany are being placed in the position of having to underwrite the oil debt of the poorer nations, thus undermining their own economies.

Recently, Great Britain's chancellor of the exchequer, Denis Healey, warned of economic disaster unless the petrodollar surpluses can be recycled to provide consumer countries with the oil they need and keep their economies afloat. "Otherwise," he said, "the world will see a slump at least on the scale of the 1930s."

How long must a hospital keep my x-rays on file?

A hospital must keep x-rays on file for five years but after 2½ years, the x-rays may be recorded on microfilm. If an x-ray has been requested by an attorney, it must be kept intact or on film until the case is concluded or for 12 years after it was made, whichever comes first.

State business outlook for '75: sluggish

by United Press International

Illinois business leaders forecast 1975 will be a sluggish year, with bright spots in selected industries like coal.

George S. Trimble, chairman of the board of the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce, said Monday a poll of 68 board members showed that most expected conditions to improve by the second half of 1975.

A sampling of opinions:

• Linden E. Wheeler, general credit manager, Sears, Roebuck and Co., Chicago: "Retail sales in 1975 for Illinois merchants will start out quite slowly but gain momentum as the year progresses and end much stronger than it began."

• Walter R. Lohman, president, First National Bank of Springfield: "In the Springfield - central Illinois area we believe economic activity will continue at a rather high level. Money will become more available at a lesser cost . . . employment will remain high . . . . commerical construction will continue . . .

• O. C. David, presidnt, Peoples Gas, Light and Coke Co.: "Inflation has turned out to be much more stubborn than expected and probably will again be double digit next year. We see little or no growth in real GNP for the year . . . basically autos, housing and consumer durables will be weak."

• William R. Hayes II, president, Hayes Fair Acres, DuQuoin: "I am bullish about the business prospects for Southern Illinois because the major products of Southern Illinois are coal, food and farm products and recreation, for which there is and always will be great demand."

• E. J. Eckel, vice president for manufacturing, Western Electric Co., Chicago: "I fully expect 1975 to be the most difficult year to manage of all those that have preceded it in my business career. Material and labor costs will continue to increase . . . continuing recession, tight money and further reductions in residential construction all will adversely affect Western Electric."

• Theodore F. Gundlach, president, J. M. J. Industries, Belleville: "The 1975 outlook for our business is amazingly good. This is a result of our alliance with the coal industry . . . we anticipate increased volume of business by possibly 20 per cent for our fiscal 1975."

• Stanley Holditch, vice president for operations, Illinois Bell Telephone Co., Chicago: "Forces point to a continued recession into the second quarter of 1975 with rising unemployment and falling profits . . . by midyear 1975, the chances for business recovery are good."

• Dr. William H. Blackburn, Dreyer Medical Clinic, Aurora: "I'm sure unemployment will continue to rise. I'm sorry to feel that the national leadership is not strong enough to turn this around any sooner. I'm not pessimistic for the long pull, but I certainly am wary for the first half of next year."

• Edward R. Healy, president, Northern Illinois Water, Champaign: "We expect 1975 to be a sluggish year and one of retrenchment for our industry."

• Loren Gillhouse, president, compressor division, Colt Industries, Quincy: "In general, business has been extremely good in 1974 and there are no major concerns that it won't continue, although at a somewaht lower level, in 1975 . . . our major market is the industrial market, and we feel the compressor demand will be strong . . ."

Area's economy? 'Weak, no growth,' executives lament

The "less-than-boom conditions" reported by the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce are mirrored in comments by executives of firms with Northwest suburban outlets:

• Jerome Sebastian, president of the Henrici's Restaurants Inc., in Des Plaines, said, "We believe the outlook for 1975 for our operations in Illinois depends on two basic economic factors: consumer disposable income and business travel.

"The predicted modest decline in the rate of inflation will have a positive impact on consumer disposable income and also on our sales. However, an over-all business slowdown will have a negative impact on our food service operations aimed at feeding the travel market," Sebastian said.

"On balance, barring a major downturn in business, we look for steady to slowly increasing sales in 1975."

• Mechlin Moore, senior vice president of external affairs for United Air Lines, a subsidiary of UAL Inc., in Elk Grove Township, said, "Major indicators point toward a weak economy in 1975 with virtually no growth in real gross national product early in the year, leading toward a modest pickup during the last six months. There was virtually no growth in the volume of air travel during the second half of 1974. United anticipates little or no growth in the airline industry in 1975. As a result, the company will exercise considerable restraint in scheduling for 1975 in order to avoid costly over-capacity for which there may be no demand."

• Theodore Eckel, vice president of manufacturing for Western Electric Co. Inc., which has a facility in Rolling Meadows, said he expects 1975 to be "the most difficult to manage of all those that have preceded it in my business career." He cited rising costs for materials and labor, the tight money market and further reductions in residential construction that will adversely affect the company. Western Electric plans to introduce new electronic switching equipment for toll and long distance applications in 1975, he said.

How to defeat the Monday morning blahs

If you still look forward to Friday when you'd rather get a lot more out of Monday, you're probably one of the millions of American men and women who, quite frankly, have no business doing what they're doing. They're unsuited to their work situation and it shows. It shows in their boredom. And it shows in the paychecks they bring home.

Trouble is, many executives and middle to top management personnel feel they can't make the change. They think they're too old. Or they feel too secure with what they're already earning. Or they simply don't know what they would like to do better.

Truth is, you're never too old, or too well paid, to launch a new career — not if it's a career that's related to your ability and to your potential.

That's where Career Management comes in. We're in the business of helping people like you find out just what they do best. Then we help them to achieve greater career satisfaction.

If you feel plagued by the Monday morning blahs, are presently making anywhere from $12,000 to $50,000 or more, and honestly believe there's more to life than "serving time" on the job, why not phone or write for a confidential interview. No cost. No obligation.

States' surpluses won't help Mr. Taxpayer

by United Press International

Many of America's state governments are rolling in money — enough to pay off two-thirds of this year's federal deficit.

Officials in state after state, a UPI survey shows, estimate they will wind up their fiscal year with healthy surpluses. There are a few sharp exceptions.

More than 40 states are in the black, with surpluses totaling $4.1 billion. California and Texas account for almost half. By comparison, the federal deficit is $6.3 billion.

BUT IT DOES not mean that state taxes are coming down. Newly elected politicians have plans to spend the surpluses, already being eroded by inflation and recession.

Texas leads the nation. Its projected budget surplus is $1.5 billion. It comes from higher than anticipated income from sales taxes, as well as the soaring price of gas and oil.

California's "cut, squeeze and trim" $500 million surplus is outgoing Gov. Ronald Reagan's pride and joy. The surplus last year was $800 million, but Reagan and the legislature temporarily cut the sales tax by 1 per cent and granted an income tax rebate.

SOME OTHER STATES are not so fortunate.

New Jersey, with no state income tax and a sales tax hard hit by recession, faces a deficit next year which officials estimate at anywhere from $240 million to $1 billion.

Massachusetts could have a deficit as high as $316 million. Connecticut, Vermont and Maine also face possible deficits.

Rhode Island and New Hampshire will have to strain to keep their budgets in balance.

In Virginia, a drop in corporate and individual taxes may put the state more than $16 million in the red next year.

MANY STATES REFLECT a surplus for a simple reason: They are forbidden by law to operate in the red.

In Indiana, State Budget Director Edison Thuma said his state has a projected $139.8 million surplus "because it is unconstitutional to run a deficit, and impossible to run a competent government on a zero balance."

Other states that don't reflect a budget surplus have nest eggs set aside to help cushion hard times.

Alaska, for example, received nearly $1 billion in oil lease sales in 1969. Since then the state has been spending both the interest and some of the principal, trying to catch up on badly needed services it could not afford before.

STATES WITH surpluses are fighting to keep them. Illinois, which had a $300 million surplus this year, faces soaring welfare costs that could cut it to $100 million.

New York officials say the state's surplus will run about $20 million next spring because of higher than estimated revenues from income and sales taxes caused by inflation. But officials say any surplus will be eaten away by rising costs.

Michigan had a $208.3 million surplus this year, but most of that is melting away because of property and income tax credits. Voters also repealed the state sales tax on food and prescription drugs.

MANY OTHER STATES' budget surpluses reflect generally healthy economies. Colorado, Pennsylvania, Idaho, Mississippi, Hawaii, Arkansas, Iowa, Nevada, Kansas, Louisiana, South Dakota, North Carolina, Nebraksa, South Carolina, West Virginia, Alabama, Kentucky, Wyoming, Georgia, Minnesota, New Mexico, Missouri, Montana, North Dakota, Oregon and Arizona were reported in the black and with hopes of staying there.

Other states, such as Washington, Florida, Utah, Delaware, Ohio, Maryland, Tennessee, Oklahoma and Wisconsin either had slight surpluses or none at all and face a tough fight to find budget-balancing incomes.

What's in a partnership?

"A rose is a rose is a rose," but a partnership may be general or limited.

Each member of a general partnership is liable for 100 per cent of the partnership obligations without regard to the percentage of profits he may share. A general partner's liability is not limited to his investment.

A limited partnership consists of one or more general partners and one or more limited partners.

Limited partners are restricted in their rights to participate in the management of the business. The general partners manage the business and have the same liability for losses as they would in a general partnership. Limited partners share profits like general partners or receive other compensation by way of income but their liability for losses is limited to the amount of their capital investment.

A general partner in a limited partnership is much the same as a general partner in a general partnership. On the other hand, a limited partner more closely resembles a stockholder in a corporation.

Signal sinks student's slam

The student took his ace of spades; led one trump to pull his opponents' teeth and threw West on lead with the queen of spades.

West led the three of diamonds and dummy's jack was covered by East's queen.

The student was back on lead with the king. After long thought he played ace and 10 of clubs; finessed unsuccessfully for that queen and was one down.

He turned to the Professor who sat East and said, "Your partner made a good guess about which minor suit to lead when I put him in."

The Professor replied, "It wasn't a guess. I told him to play a diamond. At trick one I followed with the deuce of spades. Then at trick three I followed with the eight. He knew that I still held the six. With 8-2, I would have played the eight first. Hence I had played a high-suit preference signal to ask for a diamond shift."

"Was I right to play him for the queen of clubs?" the student asked.

"Your guess in clubs was unsuccessful and poor percentage," the professor replied "It was highly probable that I would be long in clubs. Poor percentage, but it might have been right."

'Primate' a thought-provoking film

Television in review

by Frank S. Swertlow

NEW YORK — "Primate," PBS' look Thursday night at the bizarre relationships between man and the world of the primate, is one of the most fascinating, and perhaps thought provoking, documentaries of this or any television season.

This multilevel film, produced and directed by Frederick Wiseman, centers around the animals and humans at the Yerkes Primate Research Center, a division of Emory University in Atlanta.

During the two-hour black and white film, viewers will see primates — gorillas, chimpanzees and monkeys — electronically stimulated for sexual and aggressive data. Others will be ripped apart for neural and physiological patterns. And many will be studied for the effects of alcohol and other drugs.

AT FIRST GLANCE, many viewers may think this is just another left winger's use of television to grind his ax against the abusers of animals. Admittedly, one can argue there are elements of this philosophy present.

But take the show to the next level.

Why are these animals being studied and is the research really necessary or just another example of the academic playground? Perhaps.

But let's take the show to the next level. What if we substituted primates for people?

Here, lies the most devastating element of Wiseman's show. The research gained at the center might be applicable to humans, especially if they are members of a minority group.

"Why do you want to control animal behavior," said Wiseman in an interview. "The obvious use of this research is for humans. Who wants to control animals?"

WISEMAN MAY NOT BE far wrong from his viewpoint. Have we not heard the cry for the control of the sexual appetites for criminals or people on welfare? And did not the Nazis advocate the extermination and control of the so-called inferior races? Although it is hard to imagine that this could occur in the United States, the possibility just might present itself.

Wiseman uses the starkness of cinemaverite to unfod his program that uses no narration or music. You see what Wiseman has filmed and edited. One, of course, should not take the film as objective film making. The choice of the subject and the way it was edited get Wiseman's philosophy across.

But the award-winning film maker permits a good deal of leeway for the viewer to make up his mind and to seek the level he wants to emphasize on the show. This is an element of art and, at least for this show, television takes a mighty step away from being a piece of furniture.

Wiseman is a great film maker. One only has to look at his previous documentaries — "Hospital," "Law and Order," and "Titicut Follies" — to appreciate this. "Primate" continues his string of superb and unsettling films.

NOTES: Jan. 4 is the date for ABC's airing of the Royal Shakespeare Company's production of "Antony and Cleopatra," starring Richard Johnson and Janet Suzman. The three-hour attraction is one especially conceived for television . . .

Jackie Gleason will be host for the fifth annual American Guild of Variety Artists "Entertainer of the Year Awards" to be telecast as a 90-minute special by CBS Jan. 18. Members in 12 entertainment categories will be honored. The late Ed Sullivan was the host of previous programs . .

Universal Television has signed playwright Tennessee Williams to write an original drama for video. This is the first time he has written for the home screen.

A STITCH IN TIME creates Christmas gifts well in advance of zero hour. Jean Ryan, 11, of Elk Grove Village, carefully quilts a fabric picture, later to be backed with cardboard and framed in stained raw lathing strips. The completed pictures shown are Holly Hobbie prints, a favorite subject for many craft projects.

WRINKLING YOUR nose won't produce a stained glass picture, but it helps. Denise McInerney, 11, is one of the girls who completed the Elk Grove Park District craft sessions conducted by Darlene Greaves.

Crafty kids

They can beat inflation by making their gifts

by ELEANOR RIVES

Even youngsters are becoming aware that inflation is the villain in this year's holiday drama and that making your own Christmas gifts not only saves money but begets a love reaction all the way from great-grandma to little brother that no amount of cash-spending can equal.

Resources for youngsters with light hearts and light pockets are available everywhere — on the ground, in Mom's scrap bag and sewing basket, in her cleaning supplies and food cabinets, in Dad's workshop, in the scrap heap of the lumberyard.

This is nothing new to Cub Scouts and Brownie Scouts who traditionally create something from practically nothing. Young Brownies cover a wad of steel wool with a circle of brightly colored velvet, stitch the edge of the circle to draw it together, ease into an inverted spray can top, add a flower, a bow — and they have a classy new pincushion for Grandma. Spray can tops make fine holders for little evergreen arrangements too.

A PRINGLE potato chip tube can be transformed into an attractive candlelike centerpiece by wrapping with gold foil paper, then spiraling with red ribbon. Glue a small pine cone to the lid for the flame, set in a plastic foam circle and decorate base with greens and ribbon.

A three-dozen egg carton, sprayed gold, becomes an ample holder for ornaments, greens and small poinsettias, when a set of opposite corners are drawn up, stapled and secured with a big red bow.

Scrap lumber and Cub Scouts have a natural affinity for one another. Cover a piece of scrap lumber with an old piece of carpet and it becomes a shoe buffer. A rectangle of scrap wood is the base for an ecology plaque — outlined and sectioned off with single strips of raw spaghetti, the sections featuring textured kitchen spices and seeds, such as a bay leaf, peppercorns, whole cloves.

WHAT FATHER wouldn't chuckle over a photo of his son decoupaged to a piece of scrap lumber and lettered "A chip off the old block!" Or a small individual cheeseboard from scrap pieces of oak cut in the shape of a mouse.

A rectangle of wood, a handful of nails, a ball of string, a simple pattern and a little enthusiasm are all that are needed for string art, a recent trend of Cub Scout craft. One den is working hard on a sailboat, outlining and filling in with string stretched from nail to nail — a smart contemporary wall plaque for Mom.

Save those pizza cardboards. With a center circle removed, they become the backing for many a wreath, most recently of glued layers of popcorn, sprayed green, and topped with a big velvet bow.

Many of the items to be sold at the Christmas bazaar at Juliette Low School, Arlington Heights, this Saturday were made by children. Feltcraft items include felt finger puppets, costume pins and refrigerator magnets.

STONECRAFT HAS brought forth a whole population of "pebble people" — glued combinations of smooth washed painted pebbles. A larger rock becomes the base for a mini-world of moss, pine cones, mushrooms and tiny animals.

Peach crate ends make fine wood plaques for a glue arrangement combining whole and sliced pine cones, accented with a red velvet ribbon. Pine cones, acorns and dried weeds glued in a circle on an eight-inch square of wood make an attractive wreath, but for a really handsome effect, emphasize the outer outline of the wreath with an under-circle of individual pine cone petals. The bazaar elves did it and it's lovely.

Adults who help children with craft work emphasize that their position is strictly supervisory — to help find materials, explain, suggest or demonstrate procedures, and offer help only when it is truly needed.

DARLENE GREAVES, craft instructor for the Elk Grove Park District, sweeps away the concept that some crafts are for children, some for adults. "What adults can make, children can make," she says enthusiastically, and the hundreds of finished items in her room at Lions Park Community Center attest to that. The age of the craft artist is anyone's guess.

Her craft sessions for sixth, seventh and eighth grade girls included learning to sculpture little birds and other small animals from Sculpey modeling compound. Simply bake in an oven on a cookie sheet and paint with acrylic paint. Directions are on the box.

THESE GIRLS HAVE also been making stained glass pictures. What could be easier than setting a glass pane over a simple, attractive picture — perhaps from a child's coloring book, tracing the outlines with the art tip on a tube of black acrylic paint, then brushing in the areas with glass stain paint. For a decorator touch, mount the glass on print or textured material or paper, perhaps matching the curtains or wallpaper in a room. A frame is the finishing touch.

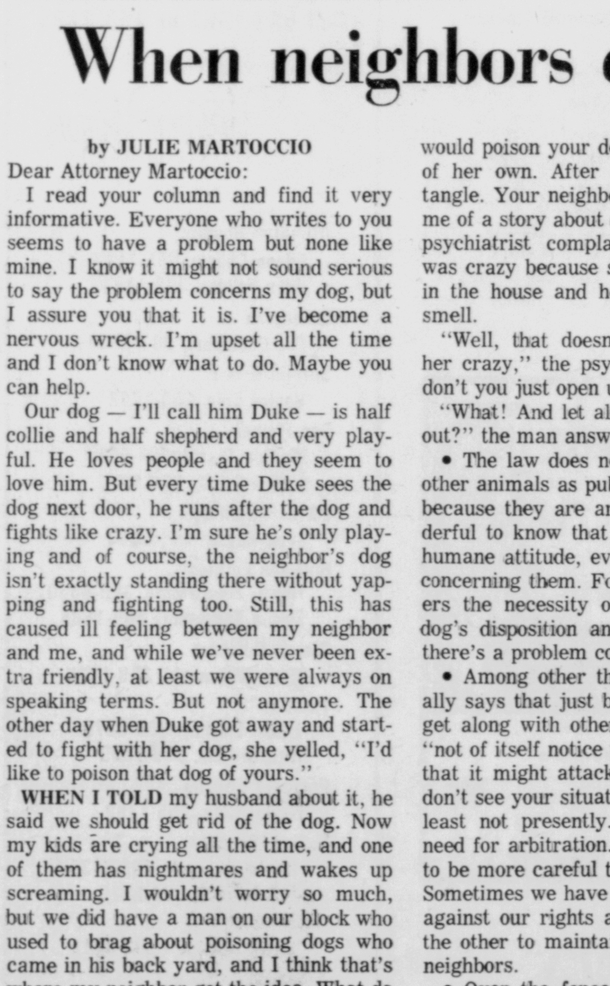
Holly Hobbie prints, the little old-fashioned girls in big sunbonnets, are big this year, according to Mrs. Greaves. You'll find them cavorting through fabrics, gift papers, greeting cards. Often a number of framable figures may be lifted from one piece of material.

Crafty kids set each square on a plain muslin backing with foam rubber sheeting or cotton batting between, then quilt all outlines with tiny running stitches. Backed with cardboard and framed in dark-stained raw lathing strips, they are eyecatching wall decorations.

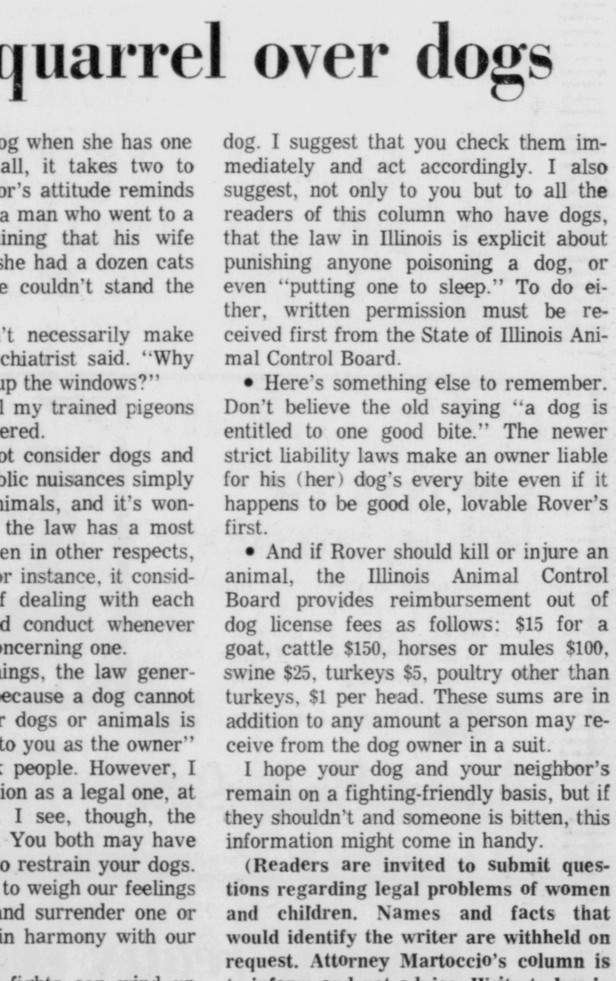
THE JUNIOR high girls have delved into bread dough art, producing stunning wreaths from a flour, salt and water mixture and delicate, brightly tinted flowers from a mixture of bread and white glue. They found joy in quiet quilling, delightful dome art, rich rub-out paintings.Not only did they produce corn husk dolls but also braided jute backings for mounting them. They popped into popular trends this season with ornaments and hot pads of patchwork, pot hangings of macrame.

Given the opportunity, the materials and a few simple techniques, youngsters may surprise you with their gift-producing potential. At the same time, they experience the satisfaction of creativity.

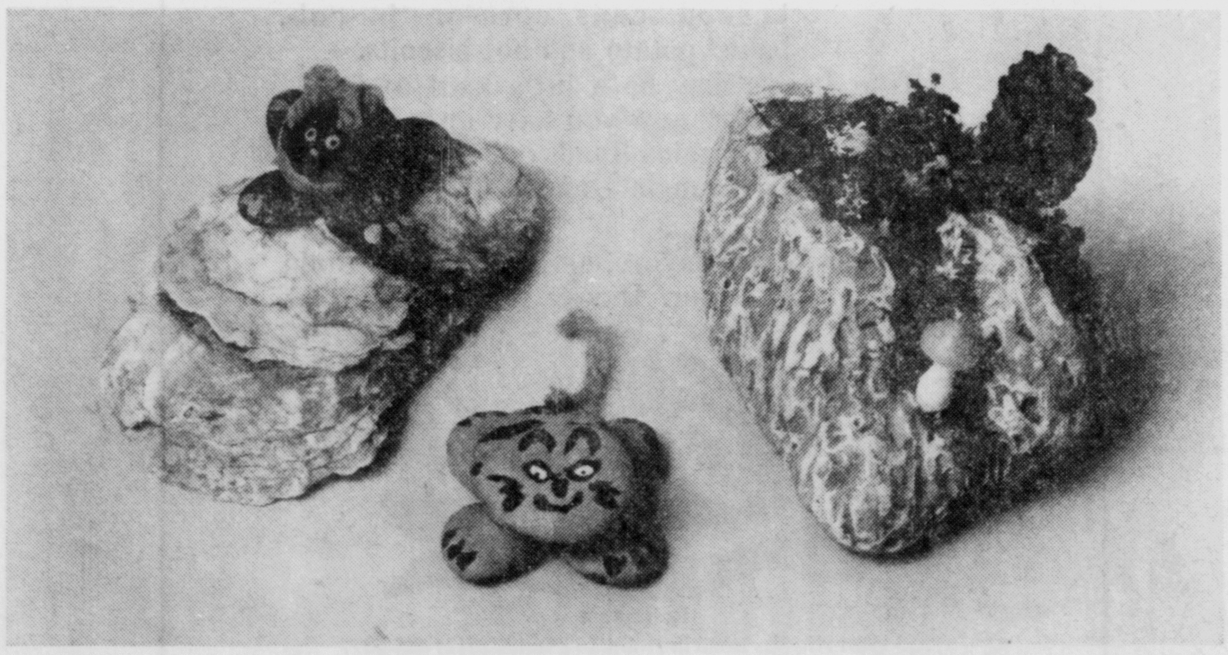
In any holiday season, whatever the state of the economy, that's a combination that's hard to beat.



LAYERS OF POPCORN are glued to a pizza cardboard, sprayed green and touched off with a red velvet bow for a Christmas wreath. It's a Cub Scout creation.



A PORTION OF a grocery crate provides shadow box for this nature scene of dried moss, weeds, tiny flowers and corn tassels. Ecology is a favorite theme.



WHIMSICAL PEBBLE animals and a mini-world on a rock were made by youngsters for the Juliette Low School bazaar Saturday. They also made felt finger puppets, costume pins and refrigerator magnets to sell.

When neighbors quarrel over dogs

by JULIE MARTOCCIO

Dear Attorney Martoccio:

I read your column and find it very informative. Everyone who writes to you seems to have a problem but none like mine. I know it might not sound serious to say the problem concerns my dog, but I assure you that it is. I've become a nervous wreck. I'm upset all the time and I don't know what to do. Maybe you can help.

Our dog — I'll call him Duke — is half collie and half shepherd and very playful. He loves people and they seem to love him. But every time Duke sees the dog next door, he runs after the dog and fights like crazy. I'm sure he's only playing and of course, the neighbor's dog isn't exactly standing there without yapping and fighting too. Still, this has caused ill feeling between my neighbor and me, and while we've never been extra friendly, at least we were always on speaking terms. But not anymore. The other day when Duke got away and started to fight with her dog, she yelled, "I'd like to poison that dog of yours."

WHEN I TOLD my husband about it, he said we should get rid of the dog. Now my kids are crying all the time, and one of them has nightmares and wakes up screaming. I wouldn't worry so much, but we did have a man on our block who used to brag about poisoning dogs who came in his back yard, and I think that's where my neighbor got the idea. What do you think I should do? Thank you. —S.R.

Dear S.R.

I don't understand why your neighbor would poison your dog when she has one of her own. After all, it takes two to tangle. Your neighbor's attitude reminds me of a story about a man who went to a psychiatrist complaining that his wife was crazy because she had a dozen cats in the house and he couldn't stand the smell.

"Well, that doesn't necessarily make her crazy," the psychiatrist said. "Why don't you just open up the windows?"

"What! And let all my trained pigeons out?" the man answered.

• The law does not consider dogs and other animals as public nuisances simply because they are animals, and it's wonderful to know that the law has a most humane attitude, even in other respects, concerning them. For instance, it considers the necessity of dealing with each dog's disposition and conduct whenever there's a problem concerning one.

• Among other things, the law generally says that just because a dog cannot get along with other dogs or animals is "not of itself notice to you as the owner" that it might attack people. However, I don't see your situation as a legal one, at least not presently. I see, though, the need for arbitration. You both may have to be more careful to restrain your dogs. Sometimes we have to weigh our feelings against our rights and surrender one or the other to maintain harmony with our neighbors.

• Over the fence fights can wind up being messy and costly. There are local laws (ordinances) that cover what you should or should not do as the owner of a dog. I suggest that you check them immediately and act accordingly. I also suggest, not only to you but to all the readers of this column who have dogs, that the law in Illinois is explicit about punishing anyone poisoning a dog, or even "putting one to sleep." To do either, written permission must be received first from the State of Illinois Animal Control Board.

• Here's something else to remember. Don't believe the old saying "a dog is entitled to one good bite." The newer strict liability laws make an owner liable for his (her) dog's every bite even if it happens to be good ole, lovable Rover's first.

• And if Rover should kill or injure an animal, the Illinois Animal Control Board provides reimbursement out of dog license fees as follows: $15 for a goat, cattle $150, horses or mules $100, swine $25, turkeys $5, poultry other than turkeys, $1 per head. These sums are in addition to any amount a person may receive from the dog owner in a suit.

I hope your dog and your neighbor's remain on a fighting-friendly basis, but if they shouldn't and someone is bitten, this information might come in handy.

(Readers are invited to submit questions regarding legal problems of women and children. Names and facts that would identify the writer are withheld on request. Attorney Martoccio's column is to inform and not advise. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006).

Speaking of . . .

Hospital-ity

by KAY MARSH

As I was saying when I was so rudely interrupted — yes, it is great to be back. And now, three operations and three months after this column last appeared, it's good to be with you again in these pages.

If you've ever been in the hospital for any length of time, you could undoubtedly write your own column on what it's like. If you haven't, perhaps you'll find herein a few hints of what surprises may be in store for you.

First of all, you'll be surprised how busy you are. Hospitals these days have so many specialists that you can hardly tell the players without a program, and most of them will zero in on you at regular intervals. The heaviest traffic tends to be in the morning. A technician who's out for blood (yours, for one of many tests) and a student nurse assigned to give you a bath often arrive at the same early hour. And both blood and bath invariably come before — long before — breakfast.

Hospitals, by the way, must be major backers of daylight saving time, as they seem dedicated to waking you up at dawn and tucking you in as soon after dusk as possible. But between times, you'll be lucky to have an hour of uninterrupted leisure to rest and recuperate.

YOUR SECOND surprise will be how your friends and neighbors rally round to help. Maybe it's just a local custom, but the nicest thing people did for us was bring in food for the family at home. Most cherished of all, of course, are the dear friends who bring in complete meals. Meat loaf, spaghetti and similar everyday fare are usually preferred over more exotic dishes. And such simple items as a gelatin salad or chocolate chip cookies taste better than ambrosia to the husband and children who've been struggling along on TV dinners or dining at the golden arches.

If you're on the sending rather than receiving end, let me emphasize that it helps when food comes in on paper plates, in foil pans or similar "no-deposit, no-return" containers. Otherwise, a husband or teenage son may drive clear across town to return a plastic container that once held Koolwhip or, at the other extreme, toss away a treasured Tupperware bowl.

Of course, you as a patient will also have visitors who come bearing gifts. Food is welcome here, too, if you have no diet restrictions. You'll be far from your friendly home refrigerator and convenient snacking. You will, moreover, be eating your dinner somewhere around 5 p.m., so a bite of candy or a piece of fruit can help ward off slow starvation.

YOU'LL BE happy to have flowers, too, especially plants that you can take home. Other appreciated gifts include notepaper, stamps and something light and cheerful to read. And you'll especially welcome cards, notes and visitors. The latter can be a little tiring if guests come in groups and stay forever, but you'll be surprised how much a brief pop-in visit can do for your morale.

Between visitors and staff, you will have some time to call your own, and some of it you'll probably spend watching television. If you've always worked or otherwise avoided daytime television, you'll be amazed at how many presumably intelligent, normal adults devote hours and hours to being on, or cheering on, the numerous daytime game and quiz shows. Most of the games seem deceptively simple, but they're played for high stakes, up to and including brand new automobiles.

Just about the time you think you've figured out how to play to win, your doctor will whisper to you the five most beautiful words in the English language: "You can go home tomorrow."

YES, THERE will be other surprises when you get there.

You'll be surprised how much your hospital bill is. You'll be surprised how much grocery prices have gone up since your last trip to the supermarket.

But the nicest surprise of all will be how happy your family is to have you home — and how very happy you are to be there!

Avocado dip does double duty as salad dressing

The homeline
by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: With the holidays zooming in, I'm getting set for a few parties and jotting down some ideas. One thing I'm missing and would love to have is a recipe for a good avocado dip. Do you have any in your big file?

—Arlene Cox

Here's one some people use not only as a dip, but as a dressing for fruit salad. Puree three peeled avocados and mix with one cup of sour cream, two tablespoons of lime juice and one and one-half teaspoons of salt. To keep the color looking fresh until it's served, you can place waxed paper or plastic wrap directly on the dip. Try making one-third of the recipe as a test run to see if you like it.

Dear Dorothy: My Sanseveria wasn't doing well one winter so put it on the back porch — never watering it. About to throw it out in the spring, I decided to give it another chance and brought it in. Put it in a sunny east window and watered regularly.

Two years later, it has responded by growing three new shoots. Last spring the original shoot bloomed and then the second shoot bloomed. During the day, starlike blossoms all along the 12-to 16-inch stems were closed. At night they opened and gave off a hyacinthlike fragrance.

We took several pictures so much did we enjoy the experience. Water only when dry and fertilize once in a great while. It's still in a six-inch pot.

—Pat Harmon

Thank you, Pat. You've made an honest woman out of me.

Dear Dorothy: I learned while watching my mother wax the window sills after she had finished doing the furniture. I've followed her simple method since, and it has made dusting so much easier because the dust and dirt don't stick to the sills.

(Margie Mayberry

Junior women test recipes for nutrition

The home life department of Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club recently completed a community service project for Northwest Opportunity Center.

They researched 45 recipes with ingredients of powdered egg, powdered milk, canned evaporated milk, corn syrup, farina, canned chicken, canned peaches and peanut butter which are received monthly by about 300 families who qualify for Operation Nutrition.

Those recipes, which passed the taste test, were compiled into a recipe booklet and distributed at a cooking demonstration conducted by the home life group at a Northwest Opportunity Center meeting.

SIX DISHES were prepared and made available for tasting by the audinece. Mrs. Debbie Kehr, coordinator from the Northwest Opportunity Center, said it was especially helpful for the families to learn to use the eggs and milk which previously had not been well accepted. The recipes are now being translated into Spanish for further distribution through Operation Nutrition.

Belgium veil highlights bride's wedding ensemble

A mantilla veil of Belgium lace was the "something borrowed" for Diane Lynn Johannesen's Nov. 9 marriage to Kenneth D. Packer. The couple exchanged vows in St. Emily's Catholic Church, Mount Prospect.

The veil was purchased in Europe six years ago by the bride's sister-in-law, Claire Johannesen of Elk Grove Village.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Johannesen, 521 N. Emerson St., Mount Prospect, Diane appeared at the altar in a gown of ivory silk organza fashioned in Victorian style. Her mantilla was held by a lace-covered Juliet cap, and she carried a bouquet of stephanotis, roses and ivory baby's breath.

Maid of honor for the 3 p.m. ceremony was Diane's sister, Georgann of Wheeling. She wore a forest green dress and carried a bouquet of white carnations, green baby's breath and yellow roses. Margie Rush of Arlington Heights served as bridesmaid, dressed identically to the maid of honor.

MARY CLAIRE Johannesen, the bride's 3-year-old niece from Elk Grove Village, was flower girl. She preceded Diane down the aisle dressed in a long, apricot halter dress with matching jacket. A basket of yellow roses, green baby's breath and white carnations completed her ensemble.

The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dale Packer of Johnson City, N.Y., chose his brother Douglas of Endicott, N.Y., as his best man. Also attending Kenneth were James Esposito, Halsted, Pa., and James Johannesen, the bride's brother.

Following a reception for 170 guests at the Des Plaines Elks Club, the newlyweds left on a honeymoon in Acapulco and the east coast. They are making their home in Milwaukee.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Packer

Diane is a graduate of Prospect High School and attended Harper College. She was employed by A. C. Nielsen, Northbrook. Kenneth graduated from State University of New York, Oneota. He is also employed by A. C. Nielsen Co., as a field representative. The couple met on a blind date arranged by mutual friends last January.

Make this a Christmas shared

Remember all the Christmases
You've shared throughout the years,
With friends and loved ones near and far away.

It didn't matter where you were
As long as they were there,
And thinking of each other made the day.

If you've ever loved somebody
Or if you've ever cared,
Send a Hallmark card this Christmas and make it a Christmas shared.

John Fanella, computer.

There's a "device" in this room that's equipped with an immense memory bank that can receive customer complaints, sort through a maze of lines and cables, then send a crew to the trouble spot, all in a matter of minutes. That's him in the striped shirt.

His name is John Fanella and he's one of the many Edison dispatchers who are ready for action 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Because when there's an emergency, it's the dispatcher who gets the call. He's the man who uses raw information and his powers of deduction to estimate where, along the thousands of miles of overhead lines and underground cable, the problem lies. He's the man who then sends out the emergency crews to track it down and solve it. And because electricity is so vital to the welfare of a city, he must do all this with computer-like efficiency—whether the problem is an overloaded transformer or a tornado.

John Fanella has been through storms so bad that emergency crews had to be called in from as far away as Colorado. He's worked through the night restoring electricity to a factory so people could go back to work in the morning. He's even sent out a man to rescue a pet cat stranded on a pole.

In a day when some companies rely heavily on the impersonal response of a computer, we're glad to have John and our other dispatchers. As he puts it: "I have the highest respect for this department and our people. They're the most dedicated people I've ever met. But you've got to be dedicated to be in this business."

More folks enjoy hobbies

The hobby industry has grown rapidly since the 1940s. The growth can best be told in retail sales statistics.

In 1971, for example, sales volume was estimated at $1 billion plus. By 1973, the figure went to $1.2 billion and in 1974 that record is to be exceeded. Back in 1949 sales of hobby kits and material was $100 million. By 1961 sales hit $450 million. Projected sales for the 1980s — $2 billion.

Ice cube will harden

Chewing gum, candle wax and tar are easier to remove from a resilient floor when they are hard. To speed setting, cover with an ice cube in a plastic bag. Then scrape the excess with a dull-edged tool and remove residue from solvent-resistant floors with a cloth or very fine steel wool dipped in mineral spirits or naphtha. Dry with a clean cloth and repolish if necessary.

IT'S TOY COLLECTING time again for needy children. U. S. Marine Reserves are sponsoring the Toys for Tots collection program with drop-off points at all 7-11 Food Stores in the Northwest suburbs and at Woodfield and Randhurst Shopping Centers. The Marines are distributing all toys to children's organizations.

Can you spare 'Toys for Tots'? Bring 'em to Woodfield, Randhurst

Toys for needy children at Christmas are being collected through Dec. 23 at all 7-Eleven Food Stores in the Northwest suburbs and at Woodfield and Randhurst shopping centers to be distributed by the U. S. Marine Corps Reserves.

The annual Toys for Tots program is being coordinated out of the Marine compound at 3034-60 W. Foster Ave., Chicago. The reservists have already picked up toys and given them to some children's organizations. The Marines say they are accepting both new and used toys. They are repairing some toys for re-use.

In addition, one radio station, WFYR, is airing a contest called the Suprise Christmas Package in which the station donates a toy in the name of each listener who fails to guess what is contained in a Christmas package. The station will also display at Woodfield what they call the longest Christmas stocking beginning Friday. Toys put in the stocking will be donated to the campaign.

Lottery offers 'Fun in the Sun' bonus drawings

by United Press International

Illinois Lottery officials Tuesday announced a bonus program designed to spur ticket sales during the Christmas holidays.

Lottery Supt. Ralph Batch said anyone buying tickets for drawings held between Dec. 19 and Jan. 16 will get a free "Fun in the Sun" ticket also.

That ticket will have a five-digit number on it, plus a dollar figure ranging from $80 to $560.

After each regular weekly drawing between Dec. 19 and Jan. 16, Batch said, a five-digit number will be drawn, and persons who hold "Fun in the Sun" tickets with matching numbers will win the cash amount listed on the ticket.

THEY ALSO WILL qualify for a special Jan. 30 drawing at which 10 all-expense paid trips for two will be given away. Winners will go to Acapulco, the Bahamas, Barbados, Bermuda, Caracas, Hawaii, Jamaica, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands or on a cruise in the Caribbean.

"If you buy a ticket on Dec. 19 and do not win, save your ticket," Batch said. "If your bonus ticket number is drawn in any of the five subsequent drawings through Jan. 16, you win the amount of cash printed on your bonus ticket."

"You can also win more than once with the same ticket," he said.

Batch said the Lottery was offering the bonus tickets because ticket sales for state lotteries usually decline between 10 and 15 per cent in holiday seasons.

"During holidays, the interest of people tends to wander to things other than lotteries," Batch said.

HE SAID THE Lottery has sold an average of 5 million tickets a week since it began in August, or 1 million a week fewer than originally had been anticipated.

He attributed the lower sales to the tight economy, and the bad publicity on lotteries generated by U. S. Atty. Gen. William Saxbe, who has said some state lotteries are violating federal gambling laws.

Batch said the Illinois general revenue fund should net $25 million from the Lottery by year's end.

Males can marry at 18

How old must a male be before he can marry without his parent's or guardian's permission?

According to a recent ruling of the Illinois Supreme Court, males can marry at age 18 without consent of their parent or guardian — the same age as females. Prior to the ruling, males could not marry without such consent until they were 21 years old.

Heat for leg cramps

For the past two years I have had severe leg cramps, calf and thigh, mostly at night, but sometimes during the day. About two years ago I had a prostate gland operation. My prostate was about the size of a grapefruit but no tumor.

I take 200 mg. quinine capsules every eight hours or Quinamm tablets at bedtime, but relief from the leg cramps is only slight. I exercise my toes, feet and legs by flexing, twisting, bending, rubbing, etc.

I'm 61 and have severe pulmonary emphysema and chronic bronchitis. I don't smoke. Do you have any comments on my condition or ways to correct it?

The medicines you are taking are often prescribed for leg cramps. I presume you have had a careful examination of the circulation in your legs. In your age group, and sometimes younger, leg cramps can be caused by inadequate circulation.

This can happen because there is a blockage in the large arteries in the pelvis or upper thigh. If the arteries below this area are open, then a vascular surgeon can simply put in a graft of a tube or hose-like synthetic material and detour the blood around the blocked area.

In some cases the arteries are severely blocked all the way to the toes and then there is nothing to detour to, because the arteries are like a dead-end street. But, if you can make a detour, the operation is usually very successful.

IF YOU DON'T HAVE a problem that can be corrected then there are two other things I would suggest. Be sure you get plenty of calcium. A quart of milk a day should meet your needs, and with your history I would prefer it be akim milk to avoid excess fat. Also your diet should be a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet and low enough in calories to prevent obesity. If you smoked I would of course tell you that you should quit at once.

Body temperature varies from the head to the toes. The feet tend to be considerably cooler than the face. At night the circulation slows down, and since the feet and legs are farthest from the heart, they cool the most. Cool muscles are more inclined to cramp. Many readers have written in to tell me about the good results they have received from using warm socks.

Don't use a heating pad or something like that to warm your feet as it may get too hot while you are asleep and burn you. With poor circulation, if that is your problem, that would cause you serious difficulties. Let me know how you get along.

Eliminate strokes, reduce heart attacks

Lower blood pressure 'prolongs life'

DALLAS (UPI) — Lowering high blood pressure in 23 million Americans would virtually eliminate strokes and reduce the frequency of heart and kidney diseases, a Minneapolis doctor has reported.

"Strokes and high blood pressure are very closely correlated," Dr. Jay N. Cohn of the University of Minnesota Medical School said. "Reduction of high blood pressure reduces strokes to almost nothing."

Cohn said that only 11.5 million persons know they have high blood pressure — hy pertension — and half of those are being zceated. But, only half of those treated are treated properly.

"Many physicians are not giving proper therapy," Cohn said. "Many still believe high blood pressure is good for some people, but in fact, people with lower blood pressure tend to live a longer, more normal life."

HE SAID PEOPLE die not from high blood pressure directly but from strokes, heart failure and kidney disease caused by hypertension.

"People with hypertension will not live as long as they should," he said. "It accelerates organ diseases.

"We would probably all be better off if our blood pressure were in the low normal range of 90 or 100 over 60 instead of 140 over 90 which we accept as high normal. Even within the normal range it's better to be low than high, especially with someone with heart disease already."

COHN SAID proper treatment of high blood pressure is by drug therapy, but it is difficult to get both physicians and patients to be willing for the therapy.

"It is modestly expensive, modestly inconvenient and modestly troublesome because of some side effects," he said.

Cohn said adults in the black ghetto have the highest incidence of hypertension, but there are no standard factors that would identify a person with the problem without an examination.

"WE DO KNOW it's been traditionally more severe in the male and that hypertenses, those with high blood pressure, tend to be overweight," he said. "I guess if you saw a black man, overweight, it would be a good chance he's hypertensive."

He said hypertension appears hereditary and that persons with a high salt diet seem to havs a higher incidence of high blood pressure.

"But the best answer we have is, 'We still don't know the cause,' " he said.

Donated blood cells offer hope for bone cancer victim

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Doctors at the University of California have used a substance from a man's blood to prolong the life of his cancer-stricken teen-aged daughter, it was reported Sunday night.

"We now have the means to prolong the lives of bone cancer victims, most of whom would die within 18 months despite surgery, radiation or drugs," Dr. H. Hugh Fudenberg said of a substance called TF, which stands for transfer factor and is produced by white blood cells.

Doctors believe such a process may be used someday to cure many diseases, including rheumatoid arthritis and multiple sclerosis.

FUDENBERG'S research began in 1969 when TF was extracted from the blood of a man's whose 15-year-old daughter was dying of a bone cancer which formed a large tumor in her hip. The girl was injected with the substance twice a week, and her condition remained stable for nine months.

When her immunity to the cancer weakened, lab tests showed that the father's immunity to the cancer cells was also zero. Another donor was found, and doctors said the girl's response was dramatic. She remained stable for another 14 months before she died from complications.

"Her life had been extended far beyond the normal survival rate for cases of bone cancer," UC doctors said. Hospital officials said that out of gratitude, the girl's father still donates his white blood cells to treat other patients.

"We have laboratory evidence to support our belief that osteosarcoma — bone cancer — may be of viral origin, and that people having close contact with patients, relatives and close associates receive a measurable immunity to osteosarcoma which can be transferred by TF to the patients to boost their own immunity to these specific cancer cells," Fudenberg said. "This is not to say that people can 'catch' cancer from someone else," the immunology professor stressed, "only that certain viruses under certain conditions can cause cancer."

FUDENBERG SAID doctors now believe bone cancer victims have a defective immunology system which is "probably genetic."

Fudenberg said TF, which was discovered 20 years ago, may one day play a major role in those diseases in which the body appears to be allergic to its own tissues, such as rheumatoid arthritis and multiple sclerosis.

Side-by-side cycles OK

Are motorcycles allowed to travel side by side in the same lane of traffic?

Yes, but it may not be the safest thing to do. When two or more persons are riding in the same lane, it is safer never to ride side-by-side but to stagger the riders so that the rider on the left is ahead of the one on the right. Each staggered pair of riders should stay about one car length behind other vehicles for each 10 miles per hour of speed.

Crime Victim Act scope of aid widened

In August 1973, the Illinois General Assembly enacted the Crime Victim's Compensation Act. The legislature recently amended that act to provide that any person related to the victim of a crime of violence, even though he was not dependent upon that victim for his support, now is eligible for reimbursement for funeral and medical expenses paid by that relative in behalf of the victim.

Another amendment to the act sets the minimum reimbursable expense at $200.

Under the former provisions, only a person who was both related to the victim and dependent upon the victim for support could be compensated for the injuries or death of a victim of a crime of violence. Further, the amount of pecuniary loss had to be at least $500.

The amendments became effective Sept. 5 and apply to any claim that was pending on that date.

THE COMPENSATION paid under the act cannot exceed $10,000 and may be less. Other payments received due to the victim's death are taken into account.

According to figures from the Illinois Atty. Gen. office, since the original act went into effect, over 200 persons have filed for compensation — most of those from the Cook County metropolitan area.

According to the act, a victim is defined as a person killed or injured in Illinois as a result of a crime of violence either perpetrated or attempted against him, suffered while attempting to assist another victim, or while helping a law enforcement officer apprehend a person who has committed such a crime of violence.

For a person to obtain compensation, the appropriate law enforcement officials should have been notified as soon after the crime's occurrence as possible. Notice of intent to file a claim must be filed in the Office of the Attorney General within six months of the occurrence and the applicant is expected to cooperate fully with officers in the apprehension and prosecution of the criminal. If the victim and the assailant are related, no recovery will be allowed.

The person applying for compensation must file his application for compensation in the Court of Claims within two years after the incident.

WHETHER THE CRIMINAL has been apprehended or brought to trial will not affect the amount of compensation. Neither will the outcome of criminal proceedings brought against the assailant.

Reimbursement may be reduced or denied if it is determined that the victim's actions provoked the attack on him.

The total amount of financial aid also can be reduced depending upon the amount of assistance administered to the relative through the workmen's compensation act, local, state or federal governmental funds or from other sources. This does not include annuities, pension plans, social security benefits and the net proceeds of the first $25,000 life insurance that would insure to the benefit of applicant.

Fading TV

by Ed Landwehr

The important part of any TV set is the picture. Here is where results count. When your set is delivered and put in your living room, the picture is sharp and beautiful, the colors have perfect contrast. Then time goes on, and the picture gradually deteriorates from year to year. This reduction is so gradual that most folks tolerate it without noticing the difference until they see a newer set's picture.

When we service television in many homes, we notice this condition very often. Sometimes undue breakdowns are caused because people over-manipulate the controls for adjustment when all they need is a new picture tube.

On your next service call, phone 255-0700 and let Landwehr's Home Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights, evaluate your set. Many of our customers have been surprisingly pleased with our new picture tube service.

(Lee), nee Jackson; a son, Don S. of Arlington Heights; a daughter, Mrs. Carole Lynn (Douglas) Milliman of Elgin; two grandchildren, Jamie Lee and Chad Milliman, and three sisters, Mrs. Alice Hedmark, Doris Johnson and Mrs. Vivian Alcox, all of Largo, Fla. Harper cagers handle Mayfair in Skyway test

by DON FRISKE

Winning their first game of the year Tuesday night, 75-73, the Harper Hawks were relieved of the pressure that was building along with their 0-4 record.

This pressure might account for the fact that the Hawks played their worst game of the year, especially on the defensive side of the court.

"That was our worst showing so far, but don't think I'm not happy," coach Roger Bechtold said after the game. "We've been feeling a lot of pressure and hopefully this will ease somewhat now."

Bechtold was unhappy with his defense, which had been holding better teams than Mayfair to less than 73 points.

"Many times we were just standing around on defense," Bechtold explained.

On offense, the Hawks plan was to feed the ball to their consistent leading scorer, Mike Millner.

It must have worked because they finished with their biggest scoring total of the year, and Millner led the scoring with 26 points.

Falcon Lee Yankowski could have finished the game as the leading scorer, but because of his productivity, the Hawks put two men on him in the second half. He scored his last basket with 9:12 still left in the game and managed to score 25 points.

One indication of a close game is that both coaches used all of their second-half timeouts.

With just over a minute left in the game, Bechtold called a timeout to set up an inbounds play. Mayfair got the ball instead, but couldn't score the basket that would have given them a one-point lead.

With the score 75-73 and 29 seconds on the clock, Mike Millner missed a one-on-one situation that would have given the Hawks a little cushion.

It was only appropriate then that Millner should get the steal with only seconds remaining to assure the Hawks of a win.

The Hawks built up a 10-point lead in the first half, but the Falcons came right back to cut the lead to five, where it stood until the end of the contest.

Hawk Chris Mielke and Roy Coulter of Mayfair each contributed 18 points.

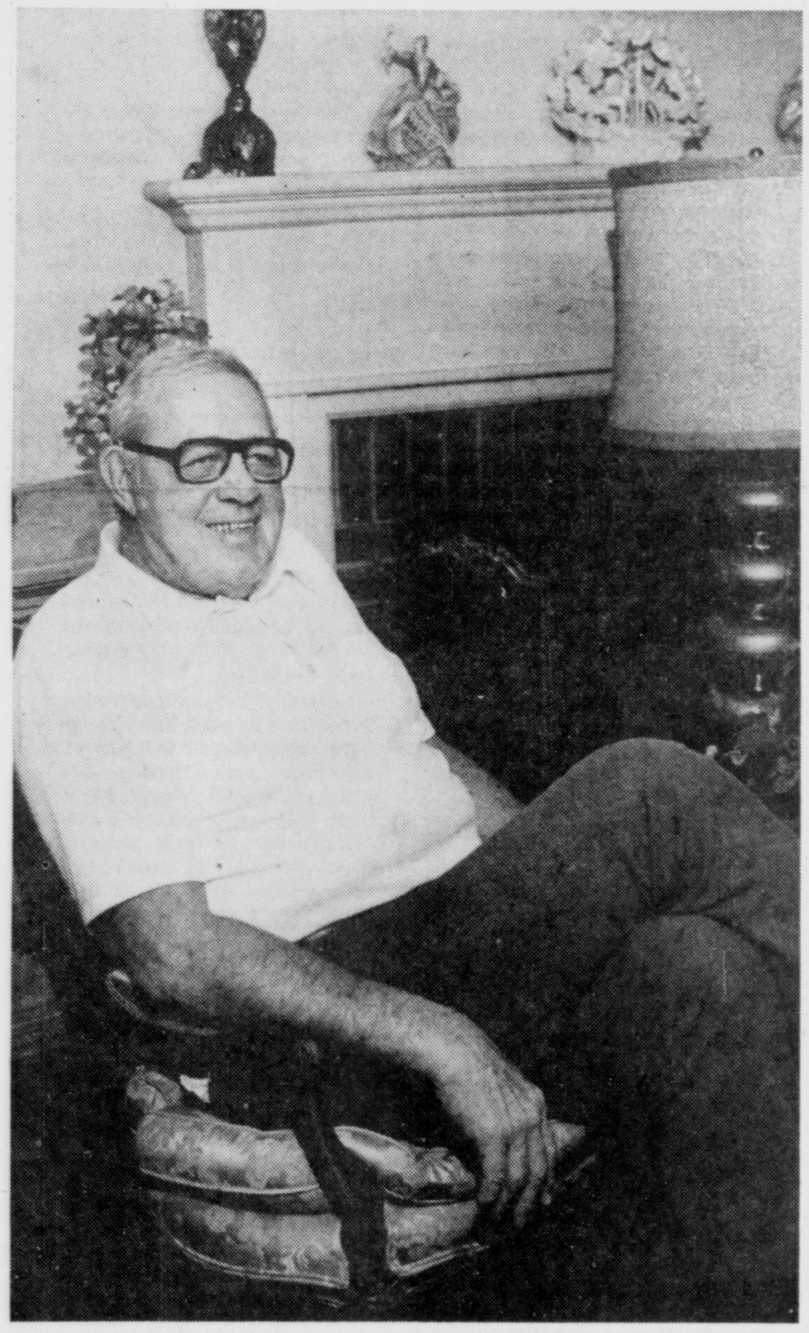
Memories

Dick Plasman—last pro to play without a helmet



THE BYGONE DAYS, when the Chicago Bears were really the Monsters of the Midway, are still fresh in Dick Plasman's memory. He shared his reminiscences of Sid Luckman, Bronko Nagurski, and a particularly vivid 73-0 score. Plasman, who lives in Arlington Heights, played and coached in the NFL. (Photo by Jim Frost)

Art Mugalian
Staff Sportswriter

by ART MUGALIAN

Dick Plasman is not a man who lives in the past, but then you wouldn't blame him if he occasionally slipped back for a quick remembrance or two.

A football star at Vanderbilt, Plasman went on to play pro ball for the Chicago Bears and Cardinals. He kicked an extra point in the Bears' 73-0 championship win over Washington in 1940, when the Halas Men were really the Monsters of the Midway.

And Plasman, a 6-foot-4, 220-pound end and linebacker, was the last NFL player to bump heads WITHOUT a helmet.

Today Dick lives in Arlington Heights with his wife June and looks back on his days as a gridiron hero with little trace of yearning. Following stints as assistant coach with the Steelers and Packers, Plasman is happy to be out of football for good.

"I really enjoy myself a lot more now that I'm out of the game," Plasman said recently. "I just enjoy the game on TV now. Coaching is too tough. I would go to work at seven in the morning and come home at midnight — five days a week. It ended up I was away from home 11 months out of the year."

So today Plasman sells optical equipment and he and his wife spend a lot of time on the golf course. But the old days of football still come alive in their memories — and for good reason. Plasman played on some of the great Bear teams of all time — a rugged bunch of bruisers coached by George Halas and led into battle by characters out of the history books like Bronko Nagurski and Sid Luckman.

"Nagurski was the best fullback in football," Plasman said. "He was probably the best player ever because he could play every position well. He could play tackle, guard, end, fullback, halfback. He was a great football player.

"That 1940 team was a great football team," he recalled proudly. "Luckman came in 1939 and he just took over. He was one of the greatest quarterbacks I ever saw. When we threw the ball in those days we usually completed it because the other team was always looking for a run."

Plasman was one of Luckman's favored receivers. But it was Chicago quarterback Ray Buivid who was indirectly responsible for introducing Dick to his wife in 1938. It happened in a game against Green Bay in Wrigley Field.

"Buivid threw a long pass downfield," explained Dick, "and I was running full speed. It was over my shoulder in the end zone and I dove for it. As I dove, out of the corner of my eye I could see the green box-seat railing coming up. I just had time to put my arms out and that took most of the shock. I woke up in the hospital that night."

If Plasman had been wearing a helmet — as most players did in 1938 — he might not have been hurt too seriously. He also wouldn't have met his wife, who was the nurse on duty when Dick finally woke up.

"We got married a few years later," Plasman smiled. "It took her a while to make up her mind."

The helmets in those days weren't very protective and, in Plasman's mind, they were a nuisance.

"The flap always fell down over my eyes," he said, "so that I couldn't follow the flight of the ball. I'd reach for the pass up here and it would hit me 'way down here. One day, after a pass bounced off my chest, Halas said I wouldn't have to wear a helmet anymore."

Plasman was there — without his helmet — for the 73-0 rout of Washington in 1940. The game will always be remembered as the one in which the Bears surprised the Redskins with the new-fangled T-formation. That's not the whole truth, says Plasman.

"It wasn't really the T that did it," he said. "We were just ready to play football that day. Oh, we ran a couple of counter plays away from the man in motion, but mostly we just outplayed them.

"On the second play, we ran (Bill) Osmanski and he went for a TD. On their first lay, Sammy Baugh threw a pass in the end zone and their man dropped it. After that, everything we did went right and everything they did went wrong."

Plasman exploded another myth — that the T-formation was the sole invention of Clark Shaughnessy. Dick noted that the Bears were using the T as early as 1937 — his first year in the pros.

"We were practicing for a game against Green Bay and Clark had us running a single wing offense with five running plays and two passing plays," Dick recalled. "We used that single wing in the first half and Green Bay was winning, 14-0.

"So Halas said enough of that and he switched to the T-formation in the second half and we beat them, 21-14. Shaughnessy gets all the credit for the T — he just added some variations, but Halas is the one who was responsible for the total concept, although it had been used by some college teams like Notre Dame before that."

After serving in the Army during the war years, Plasman did some placekicking for the champion Chicago Cardinals before moving off the field to the coaching lines.

But as an ex-Bear, he is still loyal to the Orange and Blue. He roots ardently for coach Abe Gibron's boys and he has great respect for Halas — Papa Bear.

"Halas has done so much for football and for football players," Plasman offered. "And he's not tight. He pays a player what he's worth. It's just that some players today have an overinflated idea of what they're worth."

Comparing today's athletes with those of Plasman's era is impossible, he said. "The boys today are bigger, they're faster, they're smarter. And the coaching is just so much better."

Plasman did make one comparison. "In the 1937 championship game, we lost, 21-14, and I made $144. I didn't break even since I bought $150 worth of tickets for my friends."

As a former Bear, Plasman feels that a few basic additions to the roster would help bring a title to Chicago and he thinks new general manager Jim Finks is the right man to make those additions.

"Gibron has done as much as you could expect," said Dick, "but he just doesn't have the players. You need pass catchers who are 6-3 or 6-4. And you need good tight ends. The Bears could also use a good fullback. (Ken) Grandberry is good but he's not a fullback. They've god a decent defense but they lack something on offense."

Maybe a Nagurski or a Luckman would help. Or a Plasman.

Wilkes misses only one to capture 13th contest

Only one seat at the Dec. 14 luncheon to decide the grand prize winner in Paddock Publications' "Pick the Winners" contest remains to be filled.

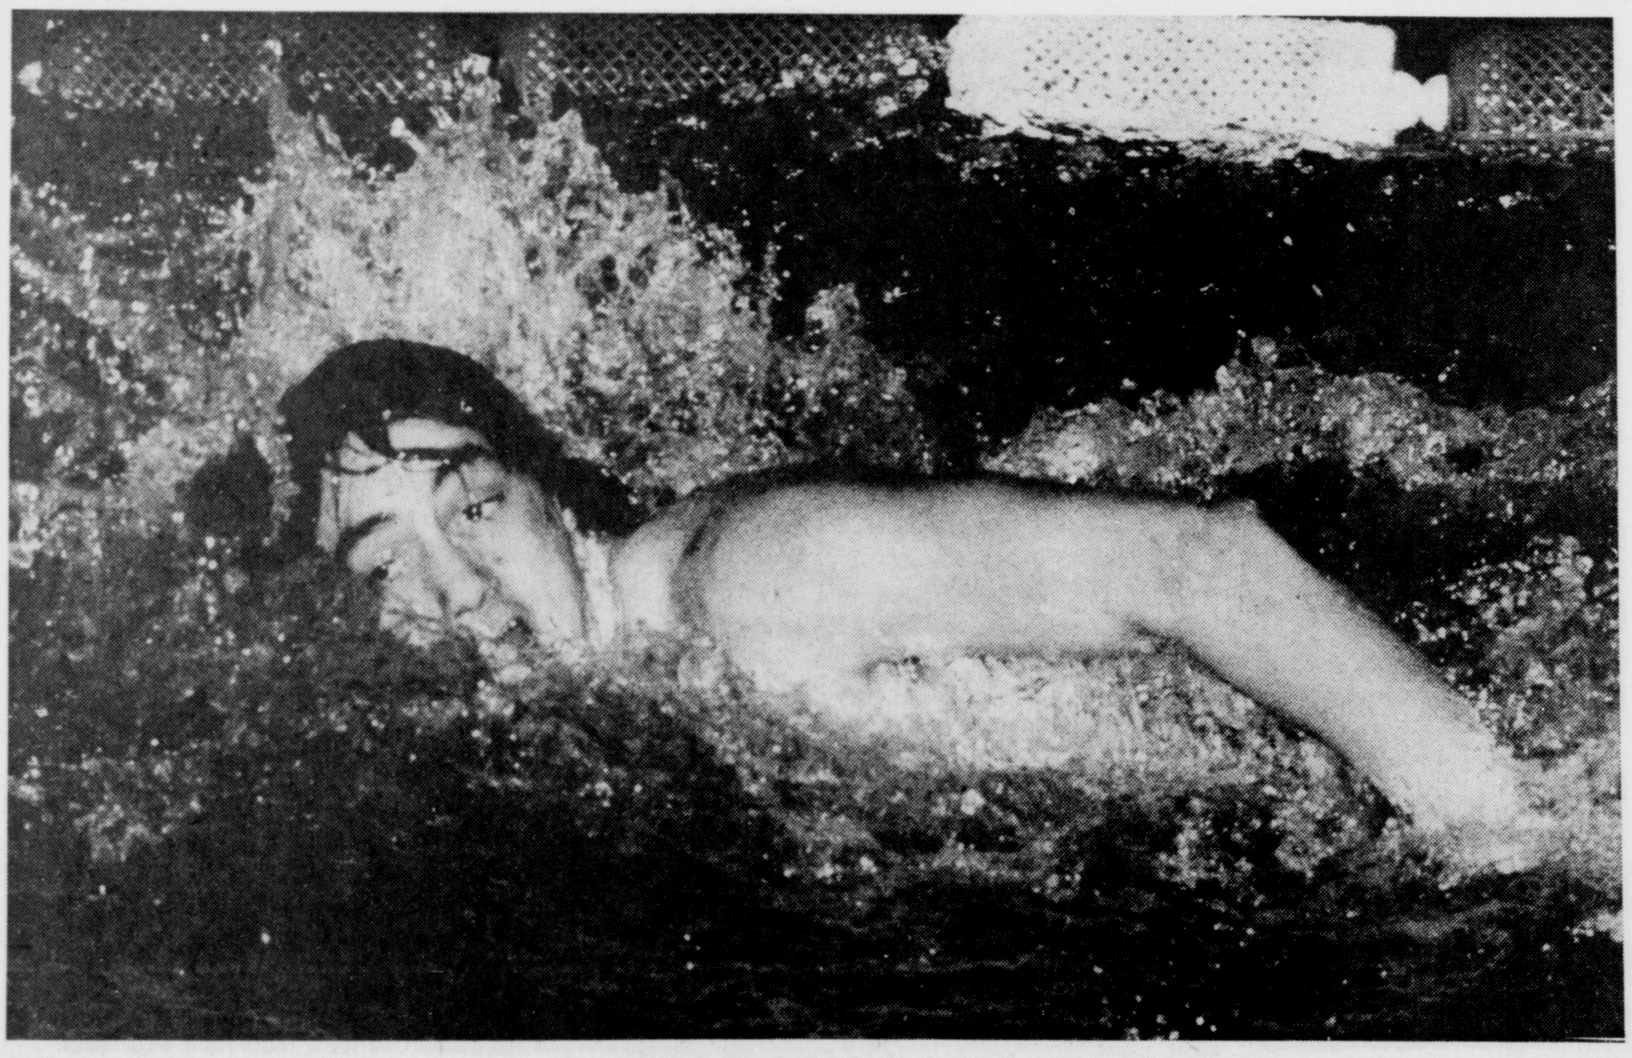
Charles Wilkes, of 704 S. Elmhurst in Mount Prospect, won the 13th edition by picking all but one of the games correctly.

Wilkes tabbed 18 of the 19 games with the Tennessee-Vanderbilt negated when it ended in a 21-21 tie. He missed only the Houston and Tulsa game, incorrectly choosing Houston.

Wilkes is now in the running for the ultimate trip to Pasadena and the Rose Bowl. He'll receive an AM-FM transistor radio as the weekly winner.

A security guard at Weber-Stevens, Wilkes could have swept the college slate clean just by going with the home teams as each winner was the host team over the weekend. Navy bested Army, Georgia swamped Georgia Tech, Florida skinned Miami, Boston College defeated Holy Cross, Baylor won their first Southwest Conference championship in years by stopping Rice, Cincinnati tripped Northeast Louisiana and Arizona stunned Arizona State.

In the pro games Cleveland braved a monster snowstorm to edge San Francisco, Kansas City upset St. Louis, Chicago nipped the New York Giants, Philadelphia squashed Green Bay, the New York Jets trampled San Diego, Oakland rocked New England, Houston snuck past Pittsburgh, Los Angeles beat Atlanta, Buffalo coasted past Baltimore and Minnesota overcame testy New Orleans.



BUFFALO GROVE'S Dan Woodruff works his lap during varsity 500 crescendo at last weekend's St. Viator Relays. The Bison placed second in that event, swimming 4:53.3, Viator winning in 4:41.6. St. Viator took team honors, 72-43 over runner-up Wheeling. Buffalo Grove placed fourth, 33 points.

Wild game causes food poisoning concern

by JIM COOK
Outdoor Editor

Many first-time hunters who bagged one of the unofficial 10,340 deer during the recent three-day Illinois shotgun season and others who participated in Wisconsin's nine-day season that concluded Sunday were faced with a peculiar and somewhat embarrassing question.

What now?

The trophy buck, one of the ultimate symbols of hunter satisfaction and reward, is also a prized source of fresh meat — venison — but in the same breath, a potential food safety hazard.

One of nature's few consistencies is that bacteria abound in the wilds and a meat spoilage problem can quickly turn all the thrills of stalking and downing a whitetail into a myriad of nightmares.

Food poisoning, the most common of which is salmonellosis, caused by salmonellae bacteria, produces the discomforting consequences of headache, vomiting, cramps, nausea, fever and diarrhea.

The symptoms usually appear anywhere from 12 to 36 hours after eating the contaminated meat, but may last from two to seven days. While leaving the victim extremely uncomfortable, salmonellosis is seldom fatal.

There are several precautions the hunter should take while still afield to insure his game is not a disease carrier.

Rabies, another contagious threat to your well being, usually affects game by making it stumble or stagger, inducing it to make an abnormal amount of noise, making it appear partially or completely blind or unusually aggressive.

If such conduct is sighted, don't shoot, but mark the location of the incident and report it to the nearest wildlife control officer as soon as possible.

The same procedure should be followed if the game is obviously suffering from an injury such as an abdominal wound. The meat will not be good for food which is only one of many good reasons to make sure your shots count and your kills clean.

Some hunters, usually waterfowlers, take the liberty of bagging game they themselves have not shot. Such practice is begging for trouble since it is probably not known when the game was killed, or if it was killed cleanly.

Since there are no federal meat inspectors in the field with you, the task of examining the game is your own responsibility.

Any telltale signs of disease or internal wounds should be reported immediately to a conservation officer. Federal meat inspectors have a classification of animals they refer to as "4-D" which includes dead, dying, diseased or disabled.

They don't allow these animals into the human food channels and neither should you.

A delicate but extremely important step while the hunter is still in the field is the operation of dressing the game.

Warm, freshly-killed game is the optimum breeding ground for the manufacture of salmonellae and other bacteria responsible for food poisoning and spoilage. Bacteria thrive in conditions between 40-140 degrees.

Immediately cleaning and chilling game is as critical as using sanitary utensils. Even plastic gloves should be employed to protect you from tularemia or rabbit fever.

As expected, the outside air temperature plays a major role. The generally accepted "safe" hunting temperature is 35 degrees. When the mercury drops below that point, the concern for bacteria growth diminishes, although speeding the cooling process is encouraged.

Deer hunters, for example, should first bleed, draw, clean and cool on sight. This can be expedited by propping the body cavity open with a stick or by hanging by the hind legs or antlers.

Age the deer in a cool place or outdoors if temperatures are between 36-40 degrees. Allow a full week for the meat of young animals to firm and from two to three weeks for older ones.

If the hide has not been removed before, do so just before butchering the meat.

There are numerous meat packing companies in both northern Illinois and Wisconsin that will btucher the meat for a fee.

Following these simple procedures may avoid a case of food poisoning. Hunting isn't supposed to leave a bad taste in your mouth.

Plunging thermometer keys final migrations

Winter conditions now prevail in many northern regions of the Mississippi Flyway, with freezing of water areas and corresponding departures of the remaining waterfowl, according to The Wingwatcher, a report on migratory waterfowl movements.

Migrations are progressing, although slowed somewhat by generally mild weather in mid-flyway states. Good movements of birds into southern portions of the flyway are occurring.

ILLINOIS

Surveys of the state in the final week of November showed totals of 494,035 ducks, 1,775 Canada geese, 12,845 blue-snow geese and 45,905 coots in the Mississippi River Valley.

The tally for the Illinois River Valley numbered 449,565 ducks, 3,240 Canada geese, 5,215 blue-snow geese and 3,920 coots while 44,880 ducks and 187,500 Canada geese inhabit the southern Illinois area.

WISCONSIN

Many water areas are now frozen or freezing. Canada geese in the Horicon zone numbered 90,000, but many of these left with the onset of a cold snap shortly thereafter. Some mallard migrations were reported in mid-November along with a departure of swans.

MINNESOTA

The water areas in the northern half of the state are now frozen and waterfowl have departed. A migration of mallards out of the state occurred Nov. 24. At present, there are 30,000 Canada geese and 20,000 mallards at Lac Qui Parle.

Talcot Lake now has 2,000 Canada geese and 2,000 mallards, down from 17,000 mallards in mid-month. Rochester now has an all-time high Canada goose population with 23,600 counted on Thanksgiving.

MICHIGAN

Weather has been relatively mild with little marsh freezing. A significant movement of swans occurred in the third week of November.

An estimated 10,000 canvasbacks were observed Nov. 22 flying at high altitudes down the Detroit River, apparently leaving Lake St. Clair.

Generally, the duck migration is now past its peak. Many scaup have departed and buildups of goldeneyes are occurring. Because of the mild weather, fairly large numbers of mallards and black ducks are still present. Latest counts in five areas of the state totalled 50,515 ducks and 26,600 Canada geese.

IOWA

Weather conditions over the state have been mild and habitat environment generally good except for lack of water in some areas. Major movements occurred in early November with waterfowl numbers increasing in most areas of the state. Surveys in late November showed 180,300 blue-snow geese and 165,000 mallards.

Wisconsin deer harvest up from '73

Although final deer kill statistics are still being compiled by the Wisconsin Department of Natural Resources, all indications are that the Badger state enjoyed one of the best statewide harvest on record.

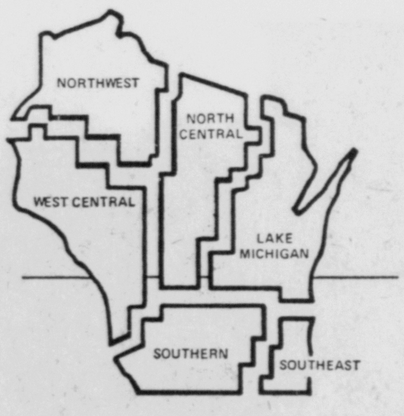
The total for the nine-day season that opened Nov. 23 and concluded Sunday is certain to exceed the record 82,100 deer taken in 1973.

The Northwest region of the state provided excellent conditions over the final weekend of the campaign and the kill figures are anticipated to climb 10-15 per cent higher than last year although hunting pressure was reportedly low.

A 2-4 inch blanket of snow made tracking ideal in the northeast region where hunters admittedly saw more deer than ever before.

In the Lake Michigan district, the harvest is expected to soar about five per cent over 1973 with hunting pressure again reported as light.

West-central Wisconsin, where the harvest was expected to decline because of a "buck only" season along the Mississippi River also reported fewer hunters in the field than in 1973.



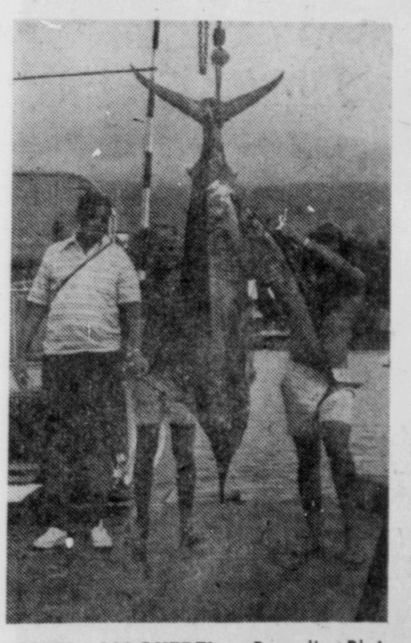
The southern section of the state provided good tracking for hunters and a projected 20 per cent increase in the number of deer taken.

Last season, 11,000 deer from this area alone, were registered by hunters while this year, the figure zoomed to 13,523.

The top three bucks taken from the state were a 17-point, 215-pounder killed in Webster County, an eight-point, 205-pounder taken in Langlade County, and a 14-point, 200-pounder dropped in Dane County.

As a comparison, the first three days of the shotgun season in Illinois produced a record 10,340 whitetails. The final three day segment of the split season for gunners is Dec. 13-15.

In Illinois, the largest deer bagged was a buck which weighed 285 pounds field-dressed and brought in by Don Clark of Princeville.



HOLY MACKEREL. Russell Blair (left) of Mount Prospect beat winter's doldrums with two trophy catches off the coast of Hawaii.

Blair boats two deep-sea trophy fish in Hawaii

While most of the area spent the last two weeks either jacking up the car and putting the snow tires on or digging out from powdery white stuff, Russell Blair was getting a suntan and a thrill of a lifetime.

Blair, of 1823 Catalpa Ln. in Mount Prospect was aboard the charter fishing boat Malia off the coast of Hawaii. With skipper Rusty Unger calling the shots, Blair sank the barb of his deep-sea fishing gear into the jaws of a coveted 25-pound ono — a large vigorous member of the mackerel family.

But before the afternoon was over, Blair's hook struck again. This time the target was a beautiful 158-pound marlin that kept everyone onboard in a frenzy for 45 minutes.

Blair gingerly played out the trophy fish on a 130-pound test line.

Area coaches look at problems in state football tourney

Keith Reinhard
Staff Sportswriter

First of Two Parts

Where do we go from here?

The question is in reference to the Illinois High School Association's spanking new baby ... the state championship football tournament.

It's apparently a healthy youngster with some very typical growing pains in store but a bright future ahead over the long run.

Probably. How it is allowed to mature could be a very significant factor, at least in terms of the moods reflected by area grid coaches. Generally, they liked the concept of the playoffs. But there were some very strong reservations.

Surprisingly, perhaps, the most outspoken critics of the playoff idea were the very coaches who participated in the thing. Jim Lyne, whose St. Viator outfit battled their way to the quarterfinals of the 5A showdown, and Bob Ferguson, whose Schaumburg Club representing the Mid-Suburban League was scuttled by East Leyden in its first playoff outing, were especially disturbed with the idea of opening up the series with a mid-week game.

"It's virtually impossible to prepare a team properly in such a short period of time," maintained Lyne. "And having to do it over again a second time makes me wonder if everyone is remembering that the first obligation we coaches have is to the welfare of our players."

The Lion mentor was speaking, of course, of the fact that winners Wednesday came back to play again on Saturday. Coupled with their regular season finales the previous weekend, it meant that most teams were subjected to a grueling three contests over a period of just eight days.

"Even spread over three weekends, it could amount to an awful lot of pressure on the kids themselves," Lyne continued. "We were fortunate in that our last regular game was pretty well decided by halftime and I was able to spell our regulars. But what about those teams battling for a championship on the final day of the season? There is the pressure of winning that, coming back against a very tough team in four days and then doing it again with just a two-day break."

Lyne and Ferguson also found another major flaw in such a condensed scheduling arrangement — the scouting aspect. "It wouldn't hurt a bit if playoff teams knew a little more in advance what to expect in terms of opposition," offered Ferguson. "We were figuring on going up against a Central Suburban team or one of the wild card picks, possibly St. Laurence."

"We didn't even have the opportunity to scout Leyden," the Saxon pilot added. "I have to feel they had an edge on us too, in the fact that our kids were never exposed to the triple option until we met Leyden. There just wasn't time to prepare."

Added Lyne, whose second guessing did pay off after including Deerfield on a long list of teams to See: "I felt for a time there that we were scouting the whole world."

Other local coaches saw a more distant view of the playoffs. Most of them liked what they saw by the time it had come down to the five-game finals at Normal last month but they too had their reservations.

W"i'm leary of the weather," said Elk Grove's head man Don Schnake, echoing the sentiments of many others. "Two years ago I can remember it wasn't so nice leading into the Super Bowl. My concern at the time was that it wouldn't be fair to the kids on either side after working hard all season to determine a league champion in a mud bath."

"This is bound to happen, sooner or later, with the playoffs," he continued. "The weather around here just isn't normally as kind as it's been to us this fall."

Another point in question was the inequities of the final pairings in terms of enrollment. Noted Buffalo Grove helmsman Grant Blaney: "A couple of the matches were way out of balance and it had to have some bearing on the outcomes. The class 2A game was particularly lopsided that way and we're going to see more of it as long as the present system of determining class by league average enrollment is used."

That 2A contest pitted winning St. Teresa (585 students) against Alexis (194), a ratio of approximately three-to-one. The 3A game had victorious West Chicago (1628) nearly doubling Mt. Carmel (849) in student population and for the 4A game there was a similar difference between triumphant Rockford East (2830) and Normal (1485).

The fact that the potent E-Rabs were even in the 4A division is subject to question. Playoff observers were nearly unanimous in feeling this team could have held its own against any 5A team in the state including the two finals participants.

Rockford East, in fact, is larger student-wise, than just about every school in the Herald area (only Forest View is listed in the Illinois Coaches Directory with more) yet all are classified 5A. Consider too that nearby Barrington with 2800 enrollment advanced to the semifinals of the 4A before Rockford knocked them off, while Blaney's almost equally successful Bison outfit (school enrollment: 1400) wasn't even entered in the 5A playoffs.

With respect to the two-day championship session itself, most local mentors believed it went off with few hitches. Wheeling's Jack Liljeberg felt some improvements could have been made in the area of crowd control however. "Fortunately, it wasn't a factor," he pointed out, "But the presence of a lot of spectators right at the edge of the field could have interferred with game play."

"I didn't particularly like the idea of awarding trophies between games either and allowing a lot of fans to rush out on the field," the Wildcat coach added. "It definitely hindered the warmups of the teams just coming on and could have developed into something worse if one side had felt cheated by the outcome of the game just concluding."

Liljeberg's valid point was due to the seating arrangement of Hancock Stadium in Normal, a situation that allows for spectator viewing adjacent to the field on one side and behind both end zones with no retaining walls. It is a situation which should be cleared up with the reported improvement and enlargement (from 15,000 to 22,000 capacity) of the arena by next year.

Along these same lines — crowd control — Schnake made note of problems that should be alleviated at the preliminary level. "Most high schools aren't equipped to handle the kind of spectator interest these playoff games generate. We encountered problems with parking and seating nearly an hour before game time up at Barrington when they played Rockford and I'm sure there were many similar situations around the state."

Schnake also questioned the concept of midweek games in general ... especially at neutral sites: "Take Rolling Meadows for example. They're trying to conduct school as usual while being deluged by Viator and Deerfield fans. The parking lot is jammed beyond capacity when school lets out too."

Another point that hit around the pocket book should be taken into consideration, as Hersey coach Joe Gliwa pointed out: "The week they picked for the finals is traditionally one of big college rivalries. How many people in future years are going to decide against going down for the state playoffs because of some big showdown they want to watch on television?"

Gliwa noted that he and his assistants lingered at their motel the Saturday of the finals and rattled the knobs of the TV back and forth between the Rockford-Normal contest and the Ohio State-Michigan skirmish before driving to the stadium for the class 5A game.

That stadium wasn't filled to capacity either, and the television rights put only $7,000 in the IHSA coffers (compared with $30,000 for basketball) undoubtedly to some extent because football interest was divided that day.

Along these same fiscal lines is the dilemma this area is faced with in possibly doing away with the Super Bowl to gain two certain berths in the playoffs. That MSL playoff game has pumped a lot of dollars back into the local high school districts over the past five years. Conversely, the IHSA scoops up the biggest piece of the pie in a playoff game, with each participant collecting only 30 per cent of the gate.

"Unless a lot of the kinks are ironed over, I can't be completely sold on the whole idea of a state playoff for football," Lyne said. "We found it anticlimactic to some degree, after gearing our whole season toward winning a conference championship."

The Viator pilot suggested area bowl games throughout the state, such as the MSL's playoff, with predetermined panels of experts picking the participants, as one alternate for fulfilling the state playoff need.

Ferguson agreed to some extent "The loss to Leyden was a letdown. Had we gone further in the tournament it might have been different but looking back now, I think I'd just as soon have packed things away after beating Hersey for the league championship. We were on top of the world then."

Hoffman hockey highlights

MITES

The Hoffman Flyer Mites once again overpowered Des Plaines in a 6-1 victory, recording an amazing 59 shots on goal. Steve Quagliata led the scorers with a hat trick. Other goal scorers were Larry Brandon, Danny Williams, and Derrick Thomas. Assists were credited to Larry Brandon, Steve Quagliata, Ken Tompkins, and Kelly Walker. Goalie Brian Strociek played another outstanding game, getting great defensive support from the entire Flyer team, which allowed only eight shots on goal.

SQUIRTS

The Squirt Flyers were defeated 5-2 by a tough Des Plaines team. The Flyers opened the scoring early in the first period when Mike Tompkins scored his third goal of the season, assisted by Tommy Vavra. In the second period Mike Tompkins scored again, unassisted, to bring the Flyers back to within one goal of Des Plaines. But strong goaltending kept the Flyers off the scoreboard for the rest of the game. Despite the loss, a strong performance was turned in by defensemen John Szuic and Darrell Strociek, and forwards Jim Smith, Robbie Ghattas, and Ron Smith. The Flyers remain tied for third place in league play.

PEE WEES

The Flyer Peewees kept their season's undefeated string intact with two wins this week. This ran their record to six wins and a tie in the Woodfield League, and four straight triumphs in exhibition tilts. Once again the Flyers offense, paced by Frank Vavra, overcame a late Des Plaines barrage to win 4 to 3. Butch Kutrubis in goal turned aside shot after shot in the third period to preserve the win. Vavra scored all the goals with assists going to Robbie Swanston and Blayne Bryant. Scott Darling played a stalwart game on defense in many shorthanded situations, and allowed Vavra to salt the victory with a shorthanded goal in the third period.

On Saturday, the Flyers overwhelmed the Crystal Lake Leafs 9-0 in a one-sided exhibition game in which Butch Kutrubis registered his fourth shutout of the year. Brian Kravitz led the scoring with a three goal hat trick, while Frank Vavra and Mike Tompkins each tallied twice. Single markers went to Richard Steineke and Scott Walker. Defensive standouts were back-checking Robbie Swanston, who also added two assists, and Blayne Bryant on the blue-line.

BANTAMS

The Hoffman Bantams lost to the league leading Des Plaines Panthers 5-2. The first period ended in a 1-1 tie, with the Flyers goal scored by Mike Brandon, assisted by Gerry Mounsey and Dave Hundrieser. Dave Hart's goal in the second period kept the game close. This goal was assisted by Mike Brandon. Des Plaines pulled ahead to stay in the third period. Brian Kushner returned to the lineup with an outstanding performance. The Flyer Bantam's record is now 3-3-1.

MIDGETS

The Hoffman Flyer Midgets avenged one of their two losses this season by defeating the Des Plaines Midgets 5-4. The game was highlighted by a hat trick by John Tompkins of the Flyers. Other goal scorers were Brian Schumel and Alan Kalis. The fans in the stands saw one of the best hockey games of the season. Both teams played a fast skating, quick passing, hard shooting contest. The Fencl-Tufo Chevrolet Player of the Game award went to Bob Brandon.

At Beverly Lanes

The Cookie Monster slipped into first place of the Paddock Mixed League Friday night at Beverly Lanes by grabbing all seven points. The team was led by Jim Cook who rolled games of 187-179-196 for a 562 series.

Other high series and games were recorded by Steve Forsyth 194-187-536, Paul Logan 215, Tom Landeros 193 and 187, Bob Frisk 193, Ardell Meyer 188 and Harry Crabb 185.

Just dogs

by Dave Terrill

OSU studies canine distemper

Canine distemper and the possibility of its existing in dogs at birth are being studied at Ohion State University with the funding from The Seeing Eye, Inc., Morristown, N.J., through the Morris Animal Foundation, Denver.

"Distemper is the most serious and widespread disease of dogs," according to research scientists.

Distemper is highly contagious and can be transmitted through various secretions containing the virus. However, little information is available on possible congenital infection, meaning infection which exists at birth.

Steven Krakowa, D.V.M.; Edward Hoover, D.V.M., Ph.D., and Adalbert Koestner, D.V.M., Ph.D., are the supervisors of the Ohio State University study. They have suggestive evidence that congenital distemper infection does exist.

Distemper vaccine given to puppies occasionally does not result in protection. This would be explained if the puppy were already infected by the virus while in the uterus.

The study is designed to find out if the virus can be transmitted through the placenta, to describe the disease acquired in this way and to find out what it does to the fetuses and puppies.

Information collected by the project may also provide information for recommending against vaccination of pregnant bitches with certain distemper vaccines.

All the information —

Some time ago this column mentioned the fact that dog owners who place display type ads to help sell their puppies should remember to include all the facts about the puppies including the breed.

Many ads are placed that seem to take for granted that everyone knows the breed because of a kennel name or owner. A newcomer to dogs does not.

The November issue of the monthly bulletin published by the Great Lakes Poodle Club of Chicago and edited by Mrs. Robert C. Dowse of Northbrook, tells it like it is.

We quote in part, "Copy should be directed to the readers who have never heard of you or your dogs" and, "A picture is not always worth a thousand words." And another good suggestion, "Don't run and rerun the same display ad." Once an ad has been run a reader will skip over it when it appears again, so change the make-up if only to make it look different.

A Day with the A.K.C. —

Comments are still being made about the very successful program and symposium held Nov. 2 by the American Kennel Club at McCormick Place.

With some 2,000 people in attendance, your editor met many of the folks who had traveled from as far away as Kansas City, St. Louis and Minneapolis, just to name a few of the cities represented in addition to the greater Chicago area.

Barks and Bays —

Mark that new calendar for Saturday, June 21, 1975. The Morris Animal Foundation will sponsor a Dog Health Seminar on that date at the DuPage Civic Center, DuPage County Fairgrounds. More information later.

Notice of Public Hearing

In accordance with the U.S. ENVIRONMENTAL Protection Agency's Regulations, the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago gives notice that it will hold a public hearing on the Environmental Assessment Statement for proposed projects within the Upper Des Plaines Service Basin. The service area includes the communities of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Wheeling, Elk Grove Village, Buffalo Grove and parts of Des Plaines and Rolling Meadows.

The proposed projects consist of a system of intercepting sewers known as Upper Des Plaines Intercepting Sewers 20, 20A, 20B, 20C and 21, to intercept and convey wastewater from the service area, and, the proposed O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant. Upper Des Plaines Intercepting Sewers 20, 20A and 21, will also intercept and convey flows from combined sewer outfalls presently discharging to Weller Creek and Feehanville Ditch and will provide partial storage of the combined wastewater for later treatment at the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant.

Since public understanding and participation are important aspects of our program, attendance and comments on the Environmental Assessment Statements are invited at this hearing. Verbal comments, however, must be limited to 15 minutes per person in order to assure equal opportunity to all persons wishing to make statements. The full text of written statements and supporting material requiring longer than 15 minutes to deliver will be entered into record of these hearings, as will all other written statements, if presented to the Sanitary District within 10 days after the hearing date.

The public hearing is to take place on December 19, 1974 at the Mount Prospect Park District Community Center located at 600 See-Gwun Avenue, Mount Prospect, Illinois, starting promptly at 7:30 p.m.

Copies of the Environmental Assessment Statement can be obtained from the Clerk's office of the Metropolitan Sanitary District of Greater Chicago, 100 East Erie Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611, are available for inspection at the Public Libraries of the above-mentioned communities, and will also be distributed at the public hearing.
